ACTION OF THE KANSAS PEOPLE.

Interesting from Salt Lake City—Escape of a Disgusted Mormon.

Probabilities of a Peaceful Result—Brigham Young likely to Retreat—Lack of Military Material—Condition of the Females, &c.

From our Special Correspondent.

LEAVENWORTH CITY, K. T., Monday, April 19, 1858.

The freemen of Leavenworth celebrated the supposed death of Lecompton with a grand public demonstration on Saturday evening. The signal was sounded from the bluff overlooking the river, by the celebrated Kickapoo cannon, and was promptly responded to by a very general turning-out of the people, hundreds of whom formed a procession with music, banners and transparencies, the latter bearing mottos, patriotic, jubilant, defiant or comic, but all referring to the great struggle impending here, or to some of the more vivid and startling facts connected therewith. The town was illuminated, also a great majority of the citizens participating, so that the blaze of joy-betokening light, was seen in nearly every window. The procession, after parading through the principal streets, marched to Perry's Hotel, a noted Free-State house, located conspicuously upon one of the highest elevations in the settled portion of the town. The view from this point was grandly beautiful, embracing not only the long rows of illuminated buildings on the lower levels but also the numerous cottages dotting the distan hills, standing out boldly conspicuous in the blaze of their own beacon lights.

The procession, having countermarched in front o' the hotel, halted, when a meeting organized by the appointment of Mayor Adams as President. I omitted to state that the military organization of the Free-State men of Leavenworth turned out under arms, going through their evolutions and firing occasional salutes by platoons at the word of command. The Kickapoo cannon, a permanent feature in the procession, was constantly plied, and in one instance at least, was loaded with the Missouri statutes imposed upon Kansas by the old Border Ruffian Legislature' and fired towards the section whence the ruffians came upon the iniquitous errand. A series of stirring resolutions was reported by J. C. Vaughn, Esq., and adopted by acclamation. Speeches were also made by Mayor Adams, Messrs. Durand, Thos. Ewing, Jr., J. C. Vaughn, Dr. K. V. Kobb, George H. Keller, (who had suffered in person by the hands of the Missourians,) A. C. Wilder, J. W. Simonton, of the New-York Times, and otners. The speeches were more moderate in tone than might have been expected from a people exasperated as the Free-State men are by sad events of the revolution through which they have passed. The enthusiasm was intense—men of all sections of the Union uniting most heartily in rejoicing over the defeat of an instrument which has scarce an aoologist in this the most conservative town in Kansas Territory. But permit me to refrain yet a little from any opinion upon the state of political parties here. I know that your readers in the East have been much bewildered by the conflicting accounts of the state of popular sentiment here. I do not suppose that I can throw any new light upon a subject already so well worn, but your readers may find interest in the views and opinions of one whom they have been accustomed to read and in whose intention to write justly and with discrimination, at least, I trust they have learned to place some reliance. I shall endeavor to retain their confidence by not venturing upon the delicate ground until I have had time to thoroughly examine it,—for nearly every man here is so intense in all his feelings and expressions, one way or the other, that it is not easy to be certain exactly where lies the strong and enduring pulse of the popular heart.

Major Ben McCulloch, one of the Utah Commissioners, has arrived, and is busy in making preparations for his journey across the Plains, but the date of his departure is not yet settled. It is understood that word has been sent to General Johnston, by express, ordering him not to advance upon Salt Lake until after the arrival of the Peace Commissioners. It would be difficult to express the feelings of regret and contempt with which frontiersmen, who are familiar with the Mormons, look upon this scheme of sending out Commissioners to treat with Brigham Young, for they say it will give him the desired opportunity to escape from the consequences of his past treason, will result in the complete defeat o' the moral effect of the military movement which has already cost so much, and give Brigham and his followers a new lease of their Salt Lake possessions, until they shall have recuperated their rapidly-exhausting energies, and so be ready to renew their former outrages in exaggerated form, after the troops shall have been again withdrawn. Those who oppose the military expedition upon humitarian grounds, in reality do the Mormons no service; for in Missouri, Kansas, and the States of the northwestern frontier, there is a deep-seated feeling of exasperation towards the Saints, which will be likely to break out in a war of extermination, unless the Government shall check and restrain the latter by the strong arm of civil law sustained and enforced, as alone it can be, by military power.

It was my fortune to meet here Frederick Loba, an ex-High Priest of the Mormons, who escaped recently from Salt Lake with his family, and is now in this city. I do not know when I have heard or read a more interesting or remarkable history than his, and within a few days I shall be able to lay it before you in full. For the present I will only say that he is a native of Switzerland, a man of great intelligence and liberal education, an accomplished linguist, and possessing rare conversational powers. He has traveled over and is familiar with every part of Europe, was distinguished in his own land and in Russia for his scientific attainments, and was formerly a prominent official in his native town of Lausanne. But notwithstanding all this, he became a victim to the strange delusion of Mormonism, and attested his sincerity by forsaking his high, honorable and independent position at home, and journeying with his family to Salt Lake in 1854, in the confident expectation to find there the Zion of God towards which his cultivated enthusiasm and intense religious zeal had [illegible] with the highest and holiest aspirations.

How soul-crushing was his disappointment when he reached the much-longed-for "Valleys of the Mountains," to find them the theatre of lust and crime of every description and the most disgusting character, perpetrated in the name of religion. His eyes were speedily opened. Once in the city of the Saints, he awoke from his delusion,—for his education and refinement were proof against even religious fanaticism and superstition. From that hour his attention was turned to plans for escape from the Valley. Foreseeing, however, that this would be impossible if his purpose should be discovered, he was compelled to conceal his true feelings and appear to join with heart and soul in the ceremonial mummeries from which his judgment turned with intensest loathing. He escaped finally, in April last, and arrived here, after suffering incredible hardships, broken down in health, his family all sick, and without a farthing left of the ample means with which he started towards Salt Lake. No one who talks with Mr. Loba can doubt his sincerity, for honesty is stamped in every lineament, and truth beams out from every line of his eloquently simple narrative.

Of course, then, his testimony in regard to the condition and resources of the Mormons at Salt Lake is of especial value, for no man could be better qualified to speak intelligently of the facts, as they are. I have questioned him closely upon these points, with the following result: He says, unhesitatingly, that the Mormons will not attempt to resist the United States troops if they go out in a body, instead of scattering along the road in small and careless parties, as did the Government wagon trains, which were destroyed upon the plains last season. Mr. Loba met these on his way in, and earnestly cautioned their conductors against their carelessness, assuring them of their danger, and urging them to concentrate and move forward in a body: but they could see no enemy, nor apprehend any danger, failed to follow the friendly advice, and were cut off and robbed.

Mr. Loba bases his positive opinion that the Mormons will make no attempt at organized resistance, upon his personal knowledge of the fact that they have no means of resistance. They have very little ammunition, no gunpowder factory, no material from which to make the powder, none of the appliances essentia for that purpose, nor any single man who knows how to make an ounce of explosive material, even if his life depended upon it. Nor have they any artillery with the exception of a single piece of cannon, a [illegible]-pounder, one of a pair given them long since by the United States—the other one having burst while Mr. Loba was in the Valley. My informant is a man of considerable military capacity, having been an officer in the French service in the time of Charles X. This fact becoming known, on his arrival at Salt Lake, he was for a long time besought to accept a military title and position, which gave him ample opportunity of ascertaining the military resources of the country and capacity of its people. He asserts that they have no military knowledge, even if they had arms—that their talk about their battalions and regiments and legions is the veriest humbug imaginable—and that their pretences of the possession of abundant armaments are falsehoods unmitigated. They have no iron from which to cast cannon,—and if they had the material, they have no foundry, nor any machinery for boring them, nor any mechanic competent to do the work. True, there is an abundance of iron ore 300 miles or more south of Salt Lake City, but it is highly magnetic, and up to the time when Mr. Loba left, although large sums had been expended in experimenting, all efforts to melt it down and render it fit for use had failed. Neither are the Mormons any better off in the matter of manufacturing small arms. They have some few gun-tinkers among them; but, as an evidence of their utter incompetency, he mentions the fact that no one of them was able to make a screw for him, to replace one which he had lost from a revolver of peculiar construction.

Mr. Loba estimates the total population of the Valley at 32,000 souls. Of these, counting every male from 15 to 60 years of age, he estimates that there are not to exceed 7,500 capable of bearing arms—while not more than 3,500 of the whole number, in his opinion, would make even passable soldiers, under drilling by skillful men. Not one in ten of the entire male population have firearms of any description; and a large proportion of those they have are out of repair and worthless. He has no confidence in the statement that the Mormons have fortified Echo Cañon, except it may be by digging ditches, and poising rocks to be rolled down from the overhanging cliffs. Their boasts of mines under the road, and all that sort of thing, he scouts as idle nonsense. In short, he considers the Mormons destitute of any effective power of resistence to even the small force already under command of Gen. Johnston, and maintains that Brigham Young's entire reliance has been based upon his hope of being able to deter the United States from attempting to deal with him, by lying boasts of his ability to wage successful resistance.

He believes that when Brigham finds his braggadocio has failed, and that the United States authorities are determined to pursue him, he will have a "special revelation from God" instructing him to retire from before the Philistines. In obedience to these directions he will go off with his 2,500 Danites or "Destroying Angels," and, when the troops arrive at Salt Lake, will be found missing. They will probably go northward to Vancouver's Island, or possibly to the Russian possessions, which they can do easier than go southward to Sonora, as they are without means of sustenance while crossing the desert lying in that direction. There is no probability that the "Saints" will retire in a body thence, to sally in predatory bands upon the Gentile troops or civil occupants of the valley. The Danites—well fitted by experience and wicked instincts for the life of banditti—might take to the mountains; but the masses could not follow them there, because it would be simply a journey to starvation and death. And for this very reason no considerable body even of the Danites will seek the mountain life, because there they could no longer live upon the sweat and blood of the toiling masses, whose tithes and other offerings have heretofore afforded to the Mormon hierarchy and their ministers of despotism known as "Destroying Angels," the support and means of gratifying their debasing tastes and passions.

Mr. Loba naturally feels very deeply the misery and degradation which Mormonism entails. A man of large heart and noble instincts, he is sorely grieved at the condition of his fellow-creatures whom he left under the heel of the Mormon Theocracy. He has witnessed every species of outrage and crime heaped upon men and women in the name of religion, and feels that it is a stern duty of the Government of the United States to go to every extreme in order to prevent the sacrifice of further victims. Understanding the whole system of Mormonism in all its secret mysteries and its continuous net-work of crime, he is firm in the conviction that it can never be tolerated with safety, and that only in extermination can the evil be reached and cured. To this issue he thinks the question must come at last, believing that the "Saints," if they escape now, will eventually force either the Federal Government, or the indignant people of the border, to cut off the tail of the rabid dog, immediately back of the ears.

Perhaps no single incident in connection with Mormon history presents more of horror, than the history of hand cart trains, which you may remember was painted in such glowing colors by some of the Mormon missionaries whose harangues I reported at one of their meetings in New-York last Summer. I asked Mr. Loba to give me an unvarnished statement of the facts,—for it was evident from the story told by the Mormons themselves that they were hiding important details which would not bear discovery. It appears that Young sent Franklin and Samuel D. Richards,—two of his shrewdest and most unscrupulous minions,—to Liverpool, to superintend the emigration thence to Salt Lake, of the numerous proselytes made in Europe. These men collected a large sum of money from the faithful, in sums of £53 each, which was to purchase wagons and other outfit for the passage from New-York to Utah,—each sum of £53 providing for a family,—or if the man had none, for himself and associates. A party of about 2,500 souls, collected under this arrangement, set sail with their faces toward "Zion." On their arrival on the frontier they were informed that Brother Brigham had received a revelation from God, directing that in order to try their faith and thus test who among them were worthy the honors of the faithful, they should journey to Salt Lake in hand-cart trains!

Accordingly, their pilots and leaders,—filled with the grace acquired at the feet of their Prophet Brigham,—kindly purchased the hand-carts for them at a cost of eight dollars each, and generously put them at the disposal of the newly-arrived brethren at exactly double that sum. Of course the entire party were compelled to go on foot, six to each hand-cart, which they dragged along with its contents, consisting of seventeen pounds of luggage to each person. All the property of the emigrants, over and above this, they were compelled to throw away, of course,—thus losing the little remant of their savings after having been most religiously robbed of all their cash. Now dissensions rose among them, and the result was that they did not reach the banks of the Missouri, from whence to start westward, until the 1st of September.

Here, then, they stood, with twelve hundred miles of weary travel on foot before them, and the merciless rigors of a Northern Winter staring them in the face. The commonest humanity would have inspired the leaders of the deluded band to stay their steps until the opening Spring. But they seem to have been oblivious to any such sentiment. They got up another revelation from on high, in which the travelers were bidden onward, and assured that the angels of the Lord would be upon their right hand and their left, shielding them from harm, providing them sustenance and protection, and conducting them rejoicing into the valleys of the mountains, where dwelt the glories of Israel's God!

Thus twenty-five hundred honest, simple souls, full of honest faith and zeal,—old men and young, gentle women and tender children, plunged into the wilderness, never doubting the result. Sad to relate, of that entire band, only about two hundred frost-bitten, starving and emaciated beings, lived to tell the story of their sufferings! Mr. Loba, himself, witnessed the entrance of the survivors,—many even of whom, were compelled to submit to the rudest kind of surgery for the amputation of limbs already frozen to death! Twenty-three hundred of the devoted band had fallen by the way, tortured victims of hunger and cold, some of them indeed torn by famished wolves, while life still struggled for the victory over famishment and frost! The picture is too horrible to contemplate—but my informant states that its truth is well attested by many persons who soon after passed over the scene of this march of death, and found it strewn with its thousands of ghastly human skeletons! He says, too, that among the Indian tribes of Utah white children are now living, who were picked up from the snow by the savages, and thus rescued from the death which their parents had failed to escape.

Mr. Loba well asks whether it is not the province of Government to take notice of such events as these, and essay an effort to prevent their recurrence. It was far from safe, however, to suggest such an idea in Salt Lake City. A London friend of Mr. L.'s, named Jarvis, stung to the quick at sight of the miserable remnant of the hand-cart immigration, remarked, that if such an event had occurred in England, Brigham Young would have been called to account by the Government. For utterance of this sentiment Jarvis became at once the object of cruel persecution. The Destroying Angels burned his house, robbed him, and dragged him out by the hair of his head. He was obliged to fly for his life, abandoning all his property of every description.

The condition of the female portion of the community at Salt Lake is represented as most deplorable. Large numbers of them feel deepty the degradation of their position, and look forward with joy, even to death, as a means of release. When the army shall have reached the Valley, Mr. Loba believes that the greater portion of the female Saints will avail themselves of the protection thus afforded them, and abandon Mormondon. Many of these will do so because of their sufferings, notwithstanding that they still maintain faith in the doctrine of the Saints, while a larger number will because of their intense disgust of the whole affair. I have thus given you a few of the prominent facts and suggestions derived from my intelligent informant. His intensely interesting personal narrative shall be forthcoming as soon as he has had time to make it complete.

Strange as it may seem, new victims to the delusions of Mormonism continue to pass up the Missouri, on their way to the Valley. Forty families of them passed here yesterday from St. Louis, on board the steamer Omaha. Russell & Majors, Government contractors, endeavored to procure passage hence on the same vessel for a party of their teamsters, but the Captain wisely declined to take them, foreseeing, as he did, that there would be serious trouble between them and the Mormons, for the teamsters were boasting upon the levee of their hostile intentions.

I understand from what seems to be excellent authority, that there are several companies of emigrants organizing here for Arizona, intending to start for that new field of agitation and political strife, as soon as the season is sufficiently advanced. The notorious Titus is stated to be raising a new company of his Border Ruffians at Kansas City, for that destination, and Mr. Cutler of Lawrence, and Ossawatomie Brown, are each drilling companies of Free-State men for the same line of march. I am informed tha a Mr. Lawrence of Pittsburg, Pa., has been appointed Surveyor-General of Arizona, or has been tendered the place; and several men who obtained a "bad eminence" among the Missourians in the recent difficulties in Kansas, state that they have been offered Federal appointments in that next theatre of sectional strife. Murder at Newburg, N. Y.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Sunday, April 25, 1858.

An Irishman named Daniel Long, residing at the corner of Nichols and Grand streets, was shot by an Irishman named Michael Healy, about 12 o'clock last night. Long was a tenant of Healy's, and about one week since the wives of the parties had some family quarrel, which resulted in a notice from Healy for Long to move out of his (Healy's) house. Last night, about midnight, Healy came to Song's residence and ordered him to move the wood from the woodhouse, which Long refused to do, it being nearly Sunday mor ning. Long then told Healey to go home, and rose to shut the door, when Healy caught him and endeavored to drag him from the room into the hall. A slight struggle ensued, during which a William Guinane, who was visiting Long that evening, took hold of Healy to separate the combatants. As he did so Healy fired two pistol shots in rapid succession the balls taking effect upon Long, the first ball entering the left side of his chest, between the third and fourth ribs, at their junction with the breast bone penetrating both lobes of the left lung and lodging in the muscles of the back,—the second ball entered between the eighth and ninth ribs on the right side, 2 or 3 inches to the right of the breast bone, passing obliquely through tne liver, through the diaphragm, through the descending aorta, lodging in the muscles of the back, on the left side, between the ninth and tenth ribs. Long fell back upon the floor and died instantly. Healy returned to his own house, and expressed a determination to deliver himself up to the authorities, but was advised by his friends to make his escape, which he finally concluded to do. He left at about 2 o'clock this morning, and notwithstanding strenuous efforts have been, and are yet being made, no clue to his whereabouts have been obtained up to this evening. A post mortem examination was held upon Long's body this morning, by Dr. P. M. Barclay, which elicited the above facts relative to the course of the latter. Coroner Fenton summoned a Jury at 2 P. M. to-day, and the examination of several witnesses progressed until 8 P. M. Nothing, however, was obtained to throw any light as to the whereabouts of Healy, or of Patrick Carroll. The last named is supposed to be implicated as accessory, either before or after the fact. The Jury adjourned until to-morrow night, at which time it is expected more light will be thrown upon this matter. Long was about 45 years of age, and leaves a wife and young child. He was a sober, industrious man, and much esteemed among his acquaintances. More anon. GUY.

INTERESTING FROM EUROPE.

ARRIVAL OF THE CANADA'S MAILS.

Another Plot to Assassinate the French Emperor.

The Trial of Bernard in London.

Important Meeting of the Cotton Supply Association in Manchester.

The Canada's mails, with Liverpool and London papers to the 10th inst., reached this City yesterday morning.

The news from India, which had only been received by telegraph in England, was given in full in our dispatch from Halifax. Particulars of the grand attack upon Lucknow are looked for with great eagerness.

The London papers say that the Leviathan is now secured by chains of the newest and strongest kind beyond the possibility of any further accident.

St. Petersburg accounts mention that among other schemes now projected, there is a grand line of telegraph between Russia and North America. The plan is to lay the wire through Siberia, thence under water from the north-eastern point of Asia, to the coast of the Russian possessions on the American Continent, and finally, to be then joined to the wires of the United States.

According to the continental papers the Government of St. Petersburg has just received from the Governor of the Russian possessions on the river Amoor a very favorable report on the military and commercial situation of the vast territory which has been there definitely annexed to the Russian Empire. The extensive works of fortification of Nicolaieff, which is destined to become, in case of need, the centre of operations against China, have not been interrupted by the Winter, which is very mild in those countries. Formidable batteries have been raised at the mouth of the Amoor, so as to be able to defend the entrance against hostile fleets. Commerce during the last year has acquired an unexpected degree of development. A number of German, American and Chinese merchants have formed establishments in the town, and a regular line of steamers has been established between Nicolaieff and San Francisco. The discovery of a mine of coal of very good quality in the Island of Sagalien will contribute not a little to extend the navigation of Russia in the Pacific Ocean.

Paris (April 6) Correspondence of the Manchester Guardian.

It is now positively certain to all those who have any means of knowing what passes behind the scenes, that the ceremony of opening the Boulevard de Sebastopol, was put off on account of the discovery of a fresh plot to assassinate the Emperor. The details of the affair are kept in the utmost possible mystery, and are probably only known to the new Préfet of Police, General Espinasse, and the Emperor himself; but the mere fact of the existence of the plot is known to some hundreds of individuals, and it has even caused a modification in the ceremonial of yesterday, whereof a trace is to be found in this morning's Moniteur. The official paper, alluding to the name of the new Boulevard, says, "It was quite right that a muster of troops should mark the inauguration of such an artery of the capital, and, after the Emperor, our soldiers were the first who ought to have trodden a soil bearing the name of so glorious a victory." This, as you will see, is a manner of explanation for the presence of all the troops that were called together yesterday. In the origin, the ceremony was to be a purely civil and municipal one; but, when it was discovered that so great a danger threatened, it was resolved to change its character altogether, and instead of a municipal, it became a military fête. Connected with this, I can relate to you a curious circumstance that has just occurred, and for which I can vouch. Last week, one of the very highest-placed functionaries here, and one of the nearest if not the nearest, in habitual confidence to the Emperor Napoleon III. called upon a lady friend of mine, with whom, and with whose husband, he has been upon intimate terms of friendship for the last fourteen years. Both this lady and her husband are foreigners, settled in Paris. The personage I speak of made the visit in question on purpose to ask these friends of his what property they had preserved in their own country, and how far they had identified their fortunes with those of France; and the language he held was textually this—"With all that my position obliges me to know, I cannot reconcile it to my long-standing friendship for you and yours, not to enlighten you upon the reality of the situation we are, all of us, now living in in France. The Emperor's existence is an all but impossible one; he is so surrounded by plots that every day brings to light, so compelled now to suspect the very individuals who serve him in the interior of the palace, that it is next to a positive miracle that he should escape. His own faith in his preservation is shaken; and from day to day, from hour to hour, anything may happen in Paris, and Paris become a place where no one who is not forced to live should be desirous of prolonging his stay. All this may not occur—it is possible that nothing of it at all may happen; but it is just as possible that it may all occur any day; and that being the real state of affairs here, I cannot reconcile it to myself not to warn you, and not to advise you to be always ready to leave this country at a moment's notice."

If I could name to you the man who uttered these words, you would at once see that, unless they were pronounced by Louis Napoleon himself, they could not be so by any one more important. I confess my own impression is, not that the plots for assassination will succeed in their direct and present form, but I firmly believe they have another danger, which is every bit as great, and which is evident to some few of those who live in Louis Napoleon's intimacy. The notion of an incessant and horrible danger hanging over his head has so possessed the Emperor, that in spite of all his resolves to the contrary, his nervous system is shaken to the roots, and he is in that peculiar state of mind that prevents a man from seeing straight or moving straight. He no longer enjoys his liberty of action or of thought, and his own mistaken acts it will be that will probably one day bring a fatal crisis on.

The State Trial in London Against Simon Bernard.

IMPORTANT CHARGE OF THE LORD CHIEF JUSTICE—A TRUE BILL FOUND BY THE GRAND JURY.

On the 9th of April, Lord Campbell attended at the Central Criminal Court, London, for the purpose of opening the Special Commission nominated to inquire into the charges preferred against Simon Bernard as an accessory before the fact to the crime of murder, committed within the Empire of France on the 14th of January last.

Lord Campbell, in addressing the Grand Jury, stated the nature of the charge, and gave a brief outline of the attempt to assassinate the Emperor of the French, which failed, but which caused the death of several bystanders. After alluding to the principal points in the evidence against the prisoner, Bernard, the Chief Justice proceeded to say:

Gentlemen, having heard and considered all the evidence which will be laid before you on the part of the prosecution, you must form your own opinion as to its sufficiency to justify the prima facie inference of complicity, or guilty knowledge of the plot on the part of the accused. That he should really have believed (as he alleged) that the grenades were connected with a new discovery in the making of gas, I must say, seems to me highly improbable. But he might by possibility suppose that they were only to be used in some military enterprise; although, looking to the small number of the grenades, (not exceeding five,) and the whole history of them, with which Bernard was well acquainted, you may think he had more reason to believe that they were instruments of assassination than munitions of war. But unless the evidence, unanswered, does in your judgment, make out against Bernard a prima facie case of complicity in the plot against the life of the Emperor, I think think that you ought to return the indictment which will be laid before you "not a true bill;" and this will put an end to all further proceedings under the commission. But if the evidence does, in your judgment make out a prima facie case of complicity, I would advise you to find "a true bill," so that the trial may proceed. Such complicity may be sufficient to make the accused an accessory before the fact to the murders which in the event were committed; although the deaths of the individuals who were killed were not in the contemplation of the accused when he became a party to the plot. It is laid down in our books that "an accessory before the fact is he who, being absent at the time of the offence committed, doth yet procure, counsel, command, or abet another to commit a felony; and it seems that those who by hire, command, counsel, or conspiracy, and those who by showing an express liking, approbation, or assent to another's felonious design of committing a felony, abet and encourage him to commit it, but are so far absent when he actually commits it that he could not be encouraged by the hopes of any immediate help or assistance from them, are accessories before the fact." As to the objection that Bernard could have had no intention that those who were killed by the explosion of the grenades should be put to death, it may be observed that such a question can only arise when the principal does not act in strict conformity with the plans and instructions of the accessory. But here, if Bernard was privy to the plot, Orsini, Pierri, Gomez and De Rudio, in throwing the grenades as they did, must be considered as having acted strictly in conformity with his plans and instructions, and he is answerable as accessory for the consequences. It is even laid down that "where the principal goes beyond the terms of the solicitation, yet if, in the event, the felony committed was a probable consequence of what was ordered or advised, the person giving such orders or advice will be an accessory to that felony. As if A advise B to rob C, and in robbing him B kills him, either upon resistance made, or to conceal the fact; or if A solicits B to burn the house of C, and B does it accordingly, and the flames taking hold of the house of D, that likewise is burnt; in these cases A is accessory to B both in the murder of C and in the burning of the house of D—the events, though possibly falling out beyond his original intention, were, in the ordinary course of things, the probable consequences of what B did under the influence and at the instigation of A." The approved test is, "Was the event alleged to be the crime to which the accused is charged as accessory a probable consequence of the act which he counselled?" You can have no difficulty, gentlemen in applying these authorities to the circumstances of the present case. Gentlemen, it may be proper that I should mention to you that an act of Parliament passed since 9 Geo. IV., viz., 11 and 12 Vic., c. 46, after reciting that it is expedient to make further provision for the more effectual prosecution of accessories before the fact to felony, and that it is expedient that any accessory before the fact to felony should be liable to be indicted, tried, convicted and punished in all respects like the principal, as is now the case in treason and in all misdemeanors, enacts, that "if any person shall become an accessory before the fact to any felony, such person may be indicted, tried, convicted, and punished in all respects as if he were a principal felon." Therefore, perhaps the indictment submitted to you may contain counts charging Bernard as a principal; but still the question of fact for your consideration will be, whether the evidence shows primâ facie that he was an accomplice in the assassination plot. If you find the indictment a true bill the accused will have an ample opportunity of making his defence both on the facts and on the law of the case. He may be able to contradict or discredit the witnesses for the prosecution, and to show that he was entirely innocent of any evil intention, or, at all events, that he had not the guilty knowledge of a plot to assassinate the Emperor of the French. Even if this fact were found against him, it will be open to his counsel to argue that he cannot, in point of law, be properly convicted according to the acts of Parliament upon which this prosecution rests. I abstain for the present from giving any opinion on any question of law which can be deemed doubtful. Whatever questions of law may be raised during the trial will be most deliberately considered, and, I trust, satisfactorily disposed of. There are four Judges of Her Majesty's superior Courts appointed to preside, and they will all be present, although two of them are still engaged on their circuits. Further, I am happy to say that we have a power, either before or after sentence, of taking the opinion of all the fifteen Judges upon any doubtful question of law which may arise during the trial. The accused not being a native-born subject, there must be an extraordinary anxiety in all quarters that he may have a fair and impartial trial. But if it should turn out that, enjoying an asylum in this Kingdom, he has violated those laws which are equally binding on foreigners residing here as upon native-born subjects, and that becoming an accomplice in a plot against the life of the sovereign of a neighboring country, the ally of our Queen, he has committed an offence for which a native-born subject would be liable to punishment, we are required not only by what is due to foreign nations, but by what is due to the equal administration of justice in our own land, to take care that he may not escape with impunity.

The Grand Jury then retired.

In the afternoon the Grand Jury came into Court with four bills, two of which charged the prisoner as a principal with the murder of persons named Nicholas Batti and Eugene Rigueur. The other charged him with being an accessory before the fact to the commission of the same murders. They returned the whole of the bills as true bills.

The trial of Bernard was to take place on Monday, the 12th of April.

The British Cotton Supply Association.

IMPORTANT PUBLIC MEETING AT MANCHESTER.

On the 9th of April the first annual meeting of the members of the Cotton Supply Association, formed last year for the purpose of encouraging the production of Cotton in other countries besides America, was held in the large room at the Town Hall, Manchester. There was a very numerous attendance, including several Members of Parliament and other distinguished individuals.

Amongst the gentlemen present were: Sir James Brooke, K. C. B., the Rajah of Sarawak; J. Cheetham, Esq., M. P.; H. Danby Seymour, Esq., M. P.; Colonel Wilson Patten, M. P.; Jas. A. Turner, Esq., M. P.; Sir John Potter, M. P.; John Torr, Esq., of Liverpool; George Hadfield, Esq., M. P. for Sheffield; R. N. Phillips, Esq., M. P., &c.

John Cheetham, Esq., M. P., was called upon to preside, but not being in attendance at the opening of the meeting, the Mayor of Manchester temporarily occupied the chair until his arrival. After a short address from the Mayor.

James Aspinall Turner, Esq., M. P., moved the adoption of the report in a forcible speech. He urged upon the meeting the vital importance of having cotton supplied from other districts besides America, and said that during the last few months we had actually been in the position of having only three or four weeks' supply of cotton in Liverpool. He showed that India was the country from which in future the British cotton supply would have to be derived, and said it was the duty of Government to give the necessary facilities for its growth in that country.

R. N. Phillips, Esq., M. P., seconded the motion.

Sir James Brooke, K. C. B., the Rajah of Sarawak, supported the motion in a powerful speech. He said he did not pretend to that intimate practical knowledge of the question which many of those present had, but he might remark that the objects of the Association were so important to the world at large, to this country in general, and to Manchester in particular, as to deserve the most serious consideration of every man in the community. He was present to-day to assure them of his most hearty support of the objects of the Association. The supply of cotton were words of light significance a few years ago, but now of the most momentous import to the statesman, the philanthropist, and every man in this country. This Association might well be called an Association for the promotion of the welfare of the country, or for the development of India, or for the prosperity of the globe; but take it as it stood—an Association for the supply of cotton—it had a meaning to attract attention and to arouse fear. [Hear, hear.] It meant the progress or decline of this great Empire—the happiness or misery of her population, and the life or death of thousands or tens of thousands in the surrounding districts. The report said that the days might be reckoned when the failure of our present cotton supply would come upon us, and when that did come, if we were not otherwise provided, thousands of people in this country would have neither labor nor food. Who could tell the consequences, indeed, to us all, to this district in particular, and to the country in general? The question was such a momentous one, so serious to the community at large, that he was sure there was no man who reflected upon it, but who would, with heart and hand, support the association in its objects. Those objects, as he took them to be, were to impress upon the public mind the importance of increasing the area of the cotton supply, which implied the progress of the country at large—the progress of Great Britain in her civilization, and likewise in her commerce. [Hear, hear.] It seemed generally conceded that India was the great field to which they were to look for an increased supply of cotton to this country. The vast extent of India, its large population, and everything connected with the position of that country, combined to render India the place which was to supersede or to compete with America in the supply of this important article. And why should not the Ganges compete with the Mississippi? Referring to Borneo, where so much of the speaker's time had been spent, he said that already that comparatively small territory had grown from 1,000 to 1,500 bales of cotton per annum, and this quantity was capable of being largely increased. He next observed that Africa, and other countries besides India, ought to be looked to for the growth of cotton; and, referring to the possible failure in America from internal convulsion, blight, or from any other cause, of the cotton crop, he pictured the fearful danger of being unprovided for such a calamity. He predicted the ultimate extinction of Slavery in America, and the probability of that country being unable to continue the supply, and concluded by remarking that the manufacturing and mercantile community had the remedy in their own hands, by supporting this association to increase the supply of cotton, and by so doing increase the prosperity of Great Britain. If, on the other hand, they would not support its objects, but stand quietly aloof, they would, like the fool in the fable, be sitting idly by the rising tide until they became overwhelmed by it. [Cheers.]

The resolution was carried unanimously.

Mr. Thomas Bazley, Chairman of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, proposed the next resolution, to the effect that the existing short supply of cotton rendered it more than ever necessary that the objects contemplated by the association on its formation should be perseveringly pursued. Before speaking to the resolution, he read the following letter from Sir Erskine Perry, M. P., who was to have proposed it:

"Since I wrote to you yesterday, I regret to say that an attack of influenza, which has kept me in the house for some days, has so much increased that it is impossible for me to go Manchester. I can assure you that I regret very much not being able to be present on such an interesting occasion as that of your meeting, especially at this moment, when all our efforts ought to be directed in promoting good government in India." [Cheers.]

Henry Danby Seymour, Esq., M. P., and Secretary to the Board of Control under the late Government, seconded the motion in an able and argumentative speech, in which he pointed out from the results of his own personal observation in India, the favorable position of that country for the growth of cotton, and the duty of Government encouraging it, by promoting public works in that country. He also observed that cotton might be successfully and profitably cultivated in the West Indian colonies.

Alexander Nisbet Shaw, Esq., late Government Inspector for the Northern District of India, supported the resolution, which was carried unanimously.

Edward Ashworth, Esq., of Bolton, moved, and Henry Dunlop, Esq., of Glasgow, seconded the next resolution, which thanked the late government for the facilities they had given to the association, in obtaining information, &c., as to the growth of cotton, from the different consuls.

Mr. John Torr, who attended as the representative of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, supported the resolution.

Colonel Wilson Patten, M. P., also supported the resolution, which was carried unanimously.

Mr. George Hadfield, M. P., for Sheffield, moved, and Mr. Edmund Potter seconded, the next resolution, to the effect that the best thanks of the meeting were due to the President and Executive Committee of the Association for their valuable and efficient services during the past year.

The motion was supported by Mr. Malcom Ross and John Pender, and carried unanimously.

The Mayor of Ashton under-Lyne next moved, and the Mayor of Oldham seconded, that a call of 2s. per horse-power be made upon the members of the Association, payable on the 11th day of May next.

Resolutions of thanks to the Executive Committee for their services during the past year, and also to the Chairman, having been carried, the meeting terminated.

Disasters to American Vessels.

WRECK OF THE NEW-YORK SHIP EXCHANGE, AND LOSS OF LIFE.

From the London Shipping Gazette.

The Exchange, Jones, of New-York, sailed from Liverpool on the 1st inst. (railway iron for Savannah.) Her crew consisted of the captain, first and second mates, seven men before the mast, and a cook and steward—in all 12 persons. After leaving Liverpool she had reached Bardsey Island, when she was obliged to put back from stress of weather to Holyhead. She left the latter port on Sunday last, and reached the Bishops, on the Welsh coast. She was brought to this by a Liverpool steam-tug. The wind now set in fresh from the southeast, a strong breeze. At 8 P. M. it increased to a gale. From this hour till 3½ on Monday morning, notwithstanding the efforts of the steam tug, the ship made no headway, but rather fell to leeward. Just at this time the hawser parted, and consequently the tug left her. The captain wore ship, head eastward; crew commenced hauling in hawser. This task took 7 men upwards of 2 hours. Set maintopsail and foretopmast staysail and ship hove-to, making NNE drift of three knots the hour. At 6 P. M. saw Tara Hill. At 7:20 P. M., saw Arklow light-ship. Found that the ship would not weather Arklow Bank. A channel pilot being on board (who was taken in at Liverpool), took the ship between the bank and the main, intending to bear up for Kingstown. The wind blew a terrific gale. On nearing Wicklow Head the ship, with square yards, struck the tail of the Horse Shoe Shoal a little southward of the Head. It was very dark and hazy. After striking, an endeaver was made to wear ship, but this proved abortive, owing to a tremendous sea and her closeness to the rocks. In a few moments she struck under a high projecting cliff. The mainmast went by the board, by the yards striking against the rock, killing in its fall the cook, and smashing the quarter-boat. The Captain and two of the men got on shore from the foretopmast backstays, and the ship kept continually listing or rolling in and off, and when she rolled in the masts touched the rocks for a moment, and it was during this all-important moment that each man made the spring or jump on to the rock, which was so precipitous as almost to render landing impossible. They had to scramble up, holding on by tufts of grass. After the Captain and a portion of the crew got on shore, the ship lurched off more from the rocks, so that the remainder of the crew could not get out in this way. In their extremity the chief mate got a studdingsail-boom, and took it to the foretopmast rigging, and with the assistance of two of the men managed to cast one end of it on the rock, while the two men held the other end on their shoulders in the rigging, and in this perilous manner he got across the pole to the rocks. When he got safe he held the end of the boom firm, while the others came out on it in like manner. When the Captain and some of the crew got on shore he sent two of them to one of the light-keepers for a rope and a lantern. He supplied both; and two or three more of the light-keepers came and rendered any assistance they could, and treated all hands very generously and hospitably. The ship was a fine bark of 563 tons register, and built by the owners, Eagle & Hazard, for their own use, the Captain also being a part-owner. The cook, who was killed by the falling of the mainmast, was a Chinese. The Captain and first mate are Americans, and the crew, with the exception of one Irishman, consists of Germans, Swedes and Danes, and one Scotchman. The wounded man is at present in the infirmary at Wicklow. He is a Scotchman, and his name is Daniel McLeod.

LOSS OF THE SHIP TITAN.

We regret to have to report the loss of the fine ship Titan, Capt. J. Henry Sears, on her passage from Callao to Cork, for orders, with a cargo of guano. The Titan was a ship (American built) of 2,500 tons register, and her immense capabilities may be estimated when it is stated that on her outward trip last year, to Melbourne, she carried out nearly 600 passengers, in addition to her crew and upwards of 2,500 tons of merchandise on freight. Having discharged her cargo at Melbourne, she proceeded to Callao, and having taken on board a very large cargo of guano, she left that port on the 24th of December last, with a crew, including the Captain, of 39 hands, and one passenger. She rounded Cape Horn and passed the Falkland Islands in safety, although encountering very severe weather, which caused the vessel to leak, at first moderately, but as the voyage proceeded, it rapidly increased, notwithstanding the efforts of the crew to keep the ship free, both by throwing the cargo overboard, and constant attention to the pumps. On the 16th February, when in lat. 28° 30' S., long. 26° 28' W., there being then 12 feet water in her hold, and the cargo becoming saturated, it was deemed necessary to get the boats ready to be used in case of an emergency. On the afternoon of the same day she listed considerably to windward, and all hands had to take to the boats. About 50 gallons of water, and 150 pounds of bread, were all the provisions the crew could get at when leaving the ship, and they were then at the mercy of the waves, being about 800 miles from Rio Janeiro. The boats, four in number, were attached to the stern of the Titan by a 50-fathom hawser, on the night of the 16th February; and next morning the Captain again boarded her, when he found she had nearly heeled entirely over, her starboard rail being under water, and her yards also immersed, so that it was impossible to walk along the deck. Having consulted with the ship's crew, it was determined to abandon her, as every human effort had been tried to save her. The boats were then cut adrift. In the first boat (quarter-boat) were the Captain, the passenger, and five of the crew; in the second, the third mate, and eight of the crew; in the third, the second mate and nine of the crew; and in the fourth (long boat), the first officer and thirteen of the crew—forty souls in all. Shortly after leaving the Titan she was observed to right herself for a few minutes, and then fall over on the starboard side, and when last seen she was rolling considerably, with her yards under water. The boats kept company for four days, steering to the westward, on the first of which they sailed 49 miles, the second 75, and on the third 90 miles. On the afternoon of the 19th February, the anxious crew discovered a ship in sight, and all the boats made sail for her. On seeing the boats the ship hove to, when she was discovered to be the French ship Golconda, of Havre, bound for that port from Callao. In a letter from Captain Sears, received here, he says the Captain of the French ship treated the crew in the kindest possible manner, and landed them at the port of Pernambuco, on the 2d of March, at their own request. Unable to take the boats on board the Golconda, they were abandoned. The letter (which was signed J. Henry Sears, captain; L. H. Berriman, first mate; ———, second mate; J. Corbalst, third mate) stated that while in the boats they had sailed altogether about 244 miles. It is stated that the captain of the Titan owned a large share of the unfortunate ship, and that she was insured to a considerable amount.

Burglary.—At a late hour Sunday night a burglar broke into the dwelling of Philip Levy, No. 541 Sixth-avenue. Mr. Levy discovered the intruder just as he was on the point of leaving with a quantity of goods in his possession, which he had just stolen. The fellow dropped his plunder and escaped. An alleged accomplice, giving his name as John Werner, who was found in front of the house, was arrested, and taken before Justice Kelly, who held him for examination.

THOSE ELEGANT RIBBONS, &c.
Ribbons are all the fashion for ladies' dress-trimmings this season, and the more aristocratic modistes of the day, the French mantua-makers, and others who work only for the exclusively elegant, keep LICHTENSTEIN busy in supplying their eager demands for his rare and beautiful stock just imported from Europe. That "new style of broad ribbon, in different colors, with a rich watered centre and an edge of embossed gold," so warmly referred to by Mrs. Stephen's Monthly, is a great attraction at Lichtenstein's. So are his unparalleled fancy fringes, with chintz headings, so suitable for Summer dresses, and his choice guipure, wrought with jet, for mantillas. So are his bridal wreaths of the lily of the valley, his pendant blossoms of the scarlet fuchsia, made in velvet, for coiffures; not to forget the head-dresses of chenille, mixed with gold and silver, and all his other wonderfully rich collection, which he sells at such astonishingly low prices, as if determined that no lady shall leave his establishment dissatisfied. Ribbons for flounces, ribbons for dress sashes, ribbons for the sides of dresses, ribbons for bows, ribbons for sleeves, ribbons for everything, may be had at LICHTENSTEIN'S, No. 387 Broadway, and it is an admitted fact that their superior cannot be had, even for double the money, in Paris or London.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Very interesting intelligence from Utah will be found in the letter of our special correspondent from Fort Leavenworth, which we publish this morning. He gives the statements and the opinions of a gentleman of education and ability, Mr. F. LOBA, who has just made his escape from Salt Lake City, and who gives very different accounts of the condition of the "Saints" from those which have hitherto been current. He does not believe they will fight the United States troops if the latter go in force sufficient to be at all formidable. He says they have no powder, no cannon, no military stores of any kind, and that all the stories of their having a large force perfectly drilled and ready for service are all nonsense. The whole number of their men capable of being good soldiers does not exceed 3,500. He thinks YOUNG will have a "special revelation," and run away as soon as he finds that the United States are in earnest. These statements are very unlike those with which the country has hitherto been amused and alarmed, and come from a source which is entitled to credit. The letter of our correspondent throws a good deal of valuable light upon the prospects of the Mormon war and the condition of the Mormon people.

In the United States Senate yesterday, Mr. SEWARD presented the joint resolutions of the New-York Legislature, in favor of the promotion of Lieutenant MAURY. Mr. MALLORY, of Florida, spoke in explanation of the difficulties with Paraguay, and in vindication of President LOPEZ, of that Republic. A debate followed on this subject, in which Messrs SIMMONS, MASON and others participated. Mr. SEWARD having taken the floor, the Kansas bill was called up by Mr. GREEN, Mr. S. giving way for that purpose. A long discussion ensued on the question whether the report of the Committee of Conference was in a parliamentary sense before the Senate, or whether it was not still in possession of the House. On this question several Senators spoke. The Chair decided that the Report was in possession of the Senate, and this decision, on appeal, was sustained, 30 against 14. Mr. CRITTENDEN asked that the consideration of the report be postponed till Wednesday, and was supported by Messrs. DOUGLAS and SEWARD. Remarks were also made by Messrs. BELL, BRIGHT, BAYARD, CAMARON and BIGLER, and it was finally agreed that the subject be made the special order for to-day at 12½ o'clock. In the House of Representatives, Mr. QUITMAN asked leave to introduce a resolution relative to the admission of future new States. Mr. ENGLISH objected, and the resolution was not read. The report of the Kansas Conference Committee came up. Mr HARRIS, of Illinois, moved to postpone till Wednesday. A motion by Mr. MARSHALL, of Kentucky, to lay the report upon the table, was made, and, after a call of the House, withdrawn. A debate followed on the motion to postpone to the second Monday (10th) of May, Mr. HARRIS having withdrawn his amendment for Wednesday next. A vote was had on the pending motion for May 10, and it was lost, Ayes, 100; Nays, 104. On motion of Mr. STEPHENS, the consideration of the Kansas Report was then postponed till Wednesday (to-morrow) at 1 o'clock. The Deficiency bill was then considered, as returned from the Senate. Mr. SPINNER, of New-York, sen to the Clerk's desk to be read what purported to be a motion or proposition, the preamble of which embraced an extract from the Burlington Hawkeye newspaper, alleging that, by order of the Land Commissioner, 6,000 acres of land had been located for Senator BRIGHT, of Indiana, at the Council Bluffs Land Office, out of office hours, &c. The reading of this document was stopped by the Speaker, as reflecting upon a member of the Senate. The affair caused much confusion, and some hard words. Mr. ENGLISH said there was nothing in the case, and wished the House to investigate it. For want of a quorum, the House adjourned.

We derive some further intelligence of interest from our files by the Canada, whose mails reached this City yesterday morning. London and Liverpool papers are received to the 10th inst. The Paris correspondent of the Manchester Guardian states that another plot to assassinate the Emperor of the French had been discovered, and that this was the cause for the great military display at the inauguration of the new Boulevard de Sebastopol. The ceremony was originally intended to have been a purely civil and municipal one. We have already published the fact that the Grand Jury, impanneled in London to investigate the charges against BERNARD and others, accused of being implicated in the attempt of the 14th of January, had found true bills against the defendants. The charge, delivered by Lord Chief Justice CAMPBELL to the Grand Jury, instructing them in their duties and defining the prisoners' offence under English law, will be found elsewhere and will be read with interest. An important meeting of the members of the Cotton Supply Association was held in Manchester on the 9th inst. Strong resolutions were adopted in favor of having Cotton supplied from other parts of the world besides the Southern States of the Union. Sir JAMES BROOKE, of Borneo, and other distinguished persons were present and made speeches. We give among our extracts particulars of the loss of the New-York ship Exchange and the Boston ship Titan, whose total wreck was reported in our Halifax dispatches.

The Quarantine buildings at Seguine's Point were entirely destroyed by fire on Sunday night. It is supposed that they were fired by some of those living thereabouts who have heretofore threatened to burn them. The man who had charge of the buildings was absent. It is not known who were the incendiaries.

A fire occurred at Harbor Grace, N. F., on the night of the 12th inst., which destroyed the greater portion of the business part of the place, and upwards of fifty houses. The amount of damage is not known, but is very heavy. The fire originated in TOUSSAINT'S Hotel, on Water-street.

The Board of Aldermen met last evening, but had not before them any business of special interest. At the request of Mayor TIEMANN, Justice WELCH was detailed to his office to take charge of the criminal business which is there rapidly accumulating, to the detriment of the regular official duties.

The Board of Councilmen, last evening, concurred with the Aldermen in their resolution to notify the various railroad companies to put their roads in the City into good repair within twenty days, and appropriating $5,000 to enable the Croton Board to carry out such repairs in case the companies do not comply within the specified time.

The General Markets, yesterday, were quiet for Cotton, which, however, was unaltered in value. A moderate business was reported in Flour, prices closing in favor of buyers. Grain was heavy, and tended downward. Pork was held higher, but was less active. Lard and Beef were pretty freely dealt in at firmer rates. Sugars were in fair request, and were steady. Coffee and Rice were less sought after, yet they were stiffly held. Tallow was brisker, and somewhat dearer. No important alteration transpired in freights.

A Calculation Worth Making.

The news from Europe by each mail seems to indicate that LOUIS NAPOLEON is fast drifting into the necessity, which many people have long prophesied for him—of fighting somebody, for the purpose of keeping up the spirits of the nation. Unfortunately, however, war is never a successful measure of domestic policy, unless something is to be gained by it, either in possessions or glory; and consequently, in order to render it effectual, somebody must be quarreled with who is likely to be beaten. The French are a great military nation, but their love for hard knocks per se, is, we believe, not greater than that of any other people. They don't fight for fighting's sake, and would rapidly become disgusted with the exercise, if it were not followed by victory and its usual incidents.

The monarch's choice of an antagonist on such an occasion as this is naturally one of world-wide interest and importance. It makes all the difference in life to us, even in America whom, amongst European nations, the Emperor selects for a castigation. Amongst the possible or probable victims of his wrath there are some whose interests are so closely allied with our own that they cannot fire a shot in anger that we are not affected by the recoil. There are others, whose annihilation would excite no other emotion in our breasts than sympathy for misfortune and fallen greatness. As to France herself, let her engage in hostilities with whom she will, a portion of the calamity falls on our shoulders.

Theoretically we are models of isolation. Our diplomatists never lose sight of the dangers of "entangling alliances;" but the self-interest of mankind is something vastly more powerful than political theories. Sages may warn, and constitutions may forbid, but the masses will in the long run bring that state of things about, in which most physical and mental enjoyment is to be had for least money. The threads of commerce are binding us to Europe so closely that a war between France and England, or France and any other Power, would to-day affect us more sensibly than if, in WASHINGTON'S or JEFFERSON'S time, we had sent fleets or armies to bear a share in the conflict. Whom LOUIS NAPOLEON will fight is with us, as well as with him, a question of profit or loss.

Its decision will happily be based on data as accessible to us as to LOUIS NAPOLEON himself. The French people and the army would probably most desire a rencontre with the Power from which they have suffered most, and that is unquestionably England; but he will seek it with the Power from quarreling with which there is most reputation to gain. All the French wars with England have ended unfortunately for France. There is no need to go back to Cressy and Agincourt for examples. The long and bloody conflict between WILLIAM III. and LOUIS XIV., was not marked by any signal triumphs of the British, but it was organized and protracted by British money, and perseverance; and the "asthmatic skeleton" who disputed sword in hand the bloody field of Landen, without winning a single great victory, broke down the prestige of his antagonist, impaired his resources, and sowed the seeds of the ruin which forty years later overwhelmed his successor. In the campaign of ANNE'S reign, MARLBORO'S succession of victories—at Blenheim, Ramilies, Oudenard, and Malplaquet, were so complete as to be rather massacres than battles. The wars immediately preceding the revolution stripped France of her choicest colonies, and handed over to England the leading strongholds of Europe. In the "war of giants" waged with the great NAPOLEON, England wearied him out by her pertinacity, rather than by the brilliancy of her operations. The battle of Toulouse, where SOULT made his last stand against WELLINGTON on the soil of France, and the battle of Waterloo, where NAPOLEON made his last stand against Europe, were both evidences of the superiority of dogged determination over military combinations, however well laid. All the great military powers, all those who placed their reliance on drill, discipline and good generalship, went down before the iron flail of "the child of destiny," like ninepins. The men whom a newspaper paragraph reports PELISSIER to have sneered at the other day, "as mere children in the art of combination," were actually the only men who made head against the greatest master in the art of combination the world ever saw. If history teaches anything, it teaches a French ruler, who wishes to make political capital out of military glory, not to go to war with England.

Austria holds out more temptations to an assailant, and, above all, to a French assailant, than any other power. Her Empire has neither the bond of nationality, nor the morale which it inspires. Italian troops can only be safely employed against Croats, or Hungarians, and vice versa. She has a vast army; but the only portion of it whose fidelity is even probable is the officers. Skillful and brave as they undoubtedly are, it is impossible to say what effect the events of 1849 produced on their minds—and how far they could be depended upon against an aggressor who proclaimed himself the restorer of nationalities. Besides, the Kaisers have never fought France successfully. All precedent would justify a French General in feeling no where so confident of victories, which would make arches spring up on the Boulevards, as on the road to Vienna. And, moreover, not only is there no power more easily overthrown than Austria, but there is no Empire whose disappearance from the map would afford a bold and constructive genius like LOUIS NAPOLEON'S so much materials for new political combinations, and combinations which would flatter French pride, and strengthen French influence. Two or three kingdoms large enough to excite the pride of their nation, and servile enough to be subservient, might easily be carved out of the dead carcase of the Austrian Empire. It is scarcely possible to conceive of a happier turn of fortune for the present occupant of the French Throne than the substitution, under his auspices, of an Italian, German, and Hungarian Kingdom, ruled by his generals or creatures, and obedient to his will, for the defiant and supercilious régime of His Majesty, FRANCIS JOSEPH. And in no way could he better meet the necessity which, in reality, is becoming one of the great dangers of his position—of providing fresh honors and rewards for the restless and ambitious military chiefs upon whose shoulders alone his throne now rests. He may be assured that he will find, in the long run, as his uncle found, that, as soon as they come to the conclusion that nothing more is to be earned by adherence to his fortunes, they will leave him to the fate which has overtaken mightier men than himself.

Violating the Quarantine Laws.

Mr. MERIAM published a letter in the Courier and Enquirer, yesterday morning, in which he stated that he had "received a letter from Governor TOUCEY, Secretary of the Navy, and had addressed him a fourth communication, saying that Mayor Tiemann will dismiss the prosecution against the officers of the pestilence frigate Susquehanna, if that vessel will go to the North Sea." Mr. MERIAM stated the truth, we have no doubt; but the fact he stated has a most improbable aspect notwithstanding. The Captain of the Susquehanna was arrested for a very flagrant breach of the Quarantine law; he positively refused to obey the orders of the Health Officer, and imperiled not only the lives of his crew, but the health of the City by his wilful disregard of the directions issued to him by the Quarantine officials. He was ordered to send his officers and crew on shore, or at least as many of them as were not absolutely necessary to take care of his ship, and boats were sent to him to assist in the landing. But he replied that he should obey no orders except those that came from the Navy Department. The consequence was that a writ was immediately issued for his arrest, when he yielded, and his crew were sent on shore; but, in the meanwhile twelve new cases of fever broke out on board, some of which proved fatal, which might have been avoided by a prompt compliance with the Health Officer's orders. The Quarantine laws are very rigid; they are explicit in defining the powers of the Health Officer, and they make any disobedience of his orders by the Captain of any vessel whatever punishable as a misdemeanor by a fine and imprisonment, or by either, as the Judge shall decide. Capt. SANDS was arrested under the act passed for the protection of the City from the introduction of the deadly disease with which his ship was infected, and, unless he can prove himself innocent of the charge of violating the law, there is no power short of the Governor of the State, that can be exercised to shield him from the penalties to which he has subjected himself. The Mayor has no right or authority whatever in the case, and, if he had, it would not become him to exercise it in the way that Mr. MERIAM proposes.

It can hardly be necessary to make a bargain with the Secretary of the Navy to induce him to take the necessary measures to purge a national vessel of the seeds of a fatal disease which will be certain to destroy her crew and create a pestilence. The surgeon of the Susquehanna has suggested that the proper method of purifying her will be to put a sufficient quantity of ice and salt in her hold to freeze the malaria; while Mr. MERIAM'S proposition to the Secretary of the Navy is to send her near enough to the North Pole to produce the same effect, on the condition that Capt. SANDS shall not be punished for wilfully violating the Quarantine laws. The surgeon's proposition is decidedly the better of the two. But, if one or the other be not very soon acted upon, the next best course will be to remove her armament and set fire to her. The Government, we imagine, will hardly decide to keep the Susquehanna anchored in the lower bay during the Summer, as a floating pest house, or a pestilence breeder.

Assassination by Contract.

It is always an interesting study to watch the development of a new idea, and for this reason we extract from the German papers the following items concerning the Teutonic Thug who proposes to assassinate LOUIS NAPOLEON, if "his expenses are paid," which we humbly submit is a new idea.

The first intimation of the scheme appeared in the Pioneer in the shape of the following advertisement:

> A young American, who has for several years pursued the studies of mechanics and chemistry engages to liberate the world of a tyrant, if his traveling expences are provided, and he is placed in a position to live two months decently in the head quarters of the Bandit. It is a matter of course impossible for him at present to give his name, but two of the most respectable Germans in this City, who have known him for three years, will guarantee his integrity. As the affair does not allow a long delay, or lengthy communications, it is desirable that from those places where only small contributions can be expected, collections should be made and announced in the columns of the Pioneer, with an address attached. Further information will then be given.

It was soon reported that the "Young American" was none other than the editor of the paper, Mr. HEINZEN, and the Criminal Zeitung, referring to the matter in a long article, stated this as a fact, and added that it was only Mr. HEINZEN'S "modesty" which prevented his announcing himself as the hero. After this the contributions begun to come in, according to the same paper, as we learn from the following—which is the latest bulletin on the subject:

> From the Criminal Zeitung, April 23, 1858.
> The stock-enterprise for the assassination of LOUIS NAPOLEON, to which we referred in our last number, enjoys the best of success. Three hundred dollars are already promised, of which one Mr. W., of Hoboken, alone, has placed two-thirds at immediate disposal. The only surprising feature in the affair is that several who are ready to contribute a considerable amount for the execution of this praiseworthy enterprise have asked for some preliminary explanations—that is to say, they want to be informed of all particulars before sending the money. It is to be regretted that, notwithstanding the high literary reputation of Mr. HEINZEN, notwithstanding his enviable social position, his proverbial honesty and bravery, some suspicion exists that, behind his offer to become an avenger of the enslaved people, and to acquire, through the assassination of LOUIS NAPOLEON, the crown of martyrdom, there yet lurks an ordinary industrial coup d'etat, and that Mr. HEINZEN, perhaps, would not go at all to the head-quarters of the Bandit if he were furnished with the means for the journey. In one letter which came for transmission to our hands, containing the proffer of a contribution, this suspicion was expressed more plainly. To the offer of a box of Hungarian wine, a condition is attached that Mr. HEINZEN shall not be allowed to drink the wine before he has committed the murder of the tyrant; and the writer requests us distinctly not to accept the word of honor of HEINZEN for the just fulfillment of the said promise. But the wine is to be forwarded to a reliable person in Paris, where Mr. HEINZEN can obtain it after he has liberated the world. However acceptable to Mr. HEINZEN, on his sacrificial journey, a glass of wine might be, we consider the conditions which accompany the offer too expensive to permit us to accept of it in his name. According to our views, he owes it to his own estimable position not to yield to any terms whatever which might accompany the proffer of assistance. If he makes concessions in any way to suspicion, he destroys the moral effect of the whole undertaking, and in the end he might bring our authorities against him, who, in their profound stupidity, would look at the enterprise as another gift enterprise, and might thereon demand an explanation. If a man like HEINZEN promises to sacrifice himself for the benefit of the whole civilized world by the murdering of LOUIS NAPOLEON, little money questions ought not to come into consideration. We are fully convinced that if he could undertake the journey to Paris with his own means, and could stop the specified time of two months, he would do so; but as it appears that he is not able to do it, the money ought to come forward without further question or condition concerning it.

The articles given above are the authority upon which the paragraph in the TIMES of yesterday was based. We are very glad to see that Mr. HEINZEN disclaims the honor, and very cheerfully publish the following note from him upon the subject:

NEW-YORK, Monday, April 26, 1858.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

SIR: Under the heading "News of the Day," April 26, you inform your readers in a short article that the undersigned, editor of the Pioneer, has undertaken to assassinate LOUIS NAPOLEON, provided his expenses are paid, &c., &c.

I must confess that it would cost no sacrifice of feeling on my part to free the world from this monster, had I an opportunity. But since this is not the case, and since I have not even with a single word proposed myself for such an undertaking as you reported, I consider it an unwarrantable misusage of your position to accuse me thus of such ridiculous boasting.

You perceive from this incident to what misunderstandings people will arrive, who, in mere pride of nativity, find the justification to judge those men who are unknown to them, and whose papers neither are nor can be read. Further, you say the undersigned has "long disgusted the sensible portion of the German population by his fierce tirades in the Pioneer," &c, &c. This also is an insult without foundation, not only to myself, but also to my readers. Every sensible and truthful German will tell you that the Pioneer counts among its readers the best educated and most respectable class of Germans that could be found by any paper in America, and that it could not be placed in a category with those trashy papers to which the Criminal Zeitung belongs, from which you quoted, and whose editor is more at home in the field of detective policy than in the German language.

If you do not wish to misuse the Press, by stating what is directly unjust and untrue, you will give this explanation a place in your next paper.

K. HEINZEN,
Editor and publisher of the Pioneer.

> "The Common Council, we gladly observe, understands that the Tribune pays its own reporters, and does not allow them to receive pay from others for work done in behalf of this journal. We mean to pay them fairly; if they are dissatisfied, the world is all before them; but while they receive our money, we require them to observe the good rule that "No man can serve two masters." The principle of allowing legislators who are reported to compensate their reporters is worse than questionable."

This delicious bit of pharisaical virtue is apropos of the following from the Sunday Dispatch,—written, we may add, by a reporter who works for the Tribune and the Sunday Dispatch jointly—whether in the service of "two masters" or only one, the parties concerned may know:

> "The resolution passed by the Common Council, and sanctioned by Mayor TIEMANN, gives $200 each to the following gentlemen for reporting the proceedings of the Common Council and Supervisors:

John Kempson	New-York Herald.
W. T. B Giles	Courier and Enquirer.
John Armstrong	DAILY TIMES.
David Russell Lee	Commercial Advertiser.
Cornelius Corson	New-York Express.
S Anderson	Daily News."

Two of the regular Tribune reporters, namely, E. F. UNDERHILL and CHARLES E. WILBUR, also received $150 by vote of the Common Council, sanctioned by the Mayor, on the same day and for precisely the same services as those mentioned above. The Tribune left out their names, either from ignorance of the fact, or from the unworthy motive of blazoning its virtue at the expense of its neighbors. The services for which these reporters and the others named were thus paid were in reporting the proceedings of Committees,—not for publication, but for the use of the members themselves and of the Common Council. We do not see why a Reporter may not thus use his leisure in doing other work, and receive pay for it, quite as properly as two Editors of the Tribune can at the same time superintend a Cyclopædia for a Publisher. The Tribune is too virtuous, in theory at least, to live long.

INTERESTING FROM WASHINGTON.

Final Vote on the English Bill to be taken on Wednesday.

A Triumph Claimed for the Administration.

The Future Admission of New States—Another Suspicious Land Transaction—Navigation of the Elbe—Collector Schell, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Monday, April 26.

The result of the vote on the question of postponement in the House, the Administration men say, has entirely settled all doubts of the final passage of the bill. Mr. STEPHENS expects to get it through on Wednesday by at least the same majority as to-day. Mr. STEPHENS knows of no defection of Southern men, and has no confidence in the rumor to that effect. Messrs. COX, HALL and CHAPMAN, who changed to the Administration side to-day, it is believed will remain there. Mr. HILL, of Georgia, before leaving for home, said that he should vote for the English bill if here.

The proposition which Gen. QUITMAN attempted to introduce was an independent one, to the effect that no new State should be admitted until they had population sufficient to entitle them to one member of the House. He will probably again bring it forward.

Mr. BILLINGHURST attempted to get in a resolution for a Select Committee of five to investigate the facts concerning the entry of six thousand acres of land in in Iowa, by direction of the Commissioner of the Land Office, in the names of Senator BRIGHT and Messrs. ENGLISH and FOLEY. The resolution is based on a charge by the Council Bluffs correspondent of an Iowa paper, that this land was given them as a bribe. The probability is, however, that it was a mere common business transaction.

JOHN KELLY has a resolution calling on the President for information relative to the tolls imposed by Hanover on the navigation of the Elbe, with a view to measures for their abolition. He intended to introduce it to-day, but failed, and will again present it

Aside from the business before the Willett's Point Committee, Collector SCHELL is making tremendous efforts to be retained in office. The sword of Damocles hangs over his head.

Betting on the city election is running high. O.

[FROM THE REPORTER FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WASHINGTON, Monday, April 26.

The bill which Mr. QUITMAN endeavored to introduce in the House to-day, sets forth that it is unwise, impolitic and unjust to existing States to prematurely or hastily admit new States, thereby unduly stimulating the occupation of distant vacant Territories by forced and unnatural migration for political, partisan and sectional purposes, producing strife and discord between different parts of the Union, and leading to corrupt political combinations in Congress. In order to correct these evils and give timely notice of the line of policy which will hereafter be pursued, the bill provides that no new States shall be admitted into the Union until it is ascertained by a census taken by the authority of Congress that the Territory asking admission contains a population sufficient for a Representative to Congress, nor until the people have been authorized by Congress to hold a convention to frame a constitution and present the same to Congress.

XXXVth CONGRESS......First Session.

SENATE....WASHINGTON, Monday, April 26.

Mr. SEWARD presented the joint resolution of the Legislature of New-York, in favor of promotion of Lieut. MAURY. Referred to the Naval Committee.

Mr. WILSON presented a protest from shipowners and merchants of Boston against the passage of a law compelling them to purchase ROGERS' marine signals. Referred to the Committee on Commerce.

The Paraguay resolution was taken up.

Mr. MALLORY explained the circumstances under which the difficulty had occurred between the Water Witch and the Paraguayan authorities. He spoke of President LOPEZ as a man of education and political sagacity, who desires under his peculiar form of government to develop the resources of Paraguay. LOPEZ has never refused reparation, and we have never yet asked him for reparation. Mr. MALLORY was strongly opposed to using force against that small Republic, whose defence of the circumstance we have not yet received, whose commerce is so valuable, and whose feeling is certainly favorable towards us.

Mr. SIMMONS, of Rhode Island, quoted from the records to show that Paraguay had manifested the averse of friendliness toward the United States. He thought we should not send too many negotiations back and forth, but send a Commissioner clothed with authority promptly to procure redress.

Mr. MALLORY replied that when President LOPEZ complained of outrages committed against Paraguay by Captain PAGE, he referred to the latter's having facilitated the Rhode Island Company in leaving the country without repaying to the Paraguayan Government the $10,000 advanced from the Treasury for their relief. The communication had no reference to the firing into the Water Witch.

Mr. MASON, of Virginia, said that Mr. MALLORY had spoken from individual information, and the Committee of Foreign Affairs from the official documents. Their report recommends, not hostilities, but, that the President present to the President of Paraguay a conciliatory, yet firm, demand for explanation and atonement; and, in view of the peculiar character of the people of Paraguay, it is best that the President have power to back his demand with a display of force. Mr. MASON took it for granted that a special United States Commissioner will be sent, and if Paraguay grants reparation, very well; but if she refuses, the fleet on the station will provide a sufficient force to go up the river, and compel it. The broad ground of complaint is that Paraguay has shed the blood of an American citizen, and confiscated American property, for which no redress had been made. The Senator from Florida says that LOPEZ is the leading spirit, but he is the leading brigand, and requires to be taught by a display of force.

Mr. MALLORY replied, warmly defending LOPEZ against the name of brigand.

Mr. SEWARD, of New-York, rose to speak, when Mr. GREEN asked that the Kansas bill be taken up, which was done. Mr. SEWARD yielding the floor.

Mr. GREEN then moved that all prior orders be postponed and the report of the Conference Committee be considered, which motion was carried, notwithstanding the earnest opposition of Mr. STUART of Michigan.

Mr. STUART then wanted to have the House amendments read, for which the substitute is proposed.

Messrs. HUNTER, GREEN and TOOMBS objected.

The Chair (Mr. FITZPATRICK) ruled that the amendment could not be read.

Mr. STUART appealed.

Mr. TOOMBS moved to lay the appeal on the table.

Mr. STUART demanded a vote, when the Senate refused by 25 yeas to 25 nays to lay the appeal on the table.

A long discussion, lasting two hours, then took place on the parliamentary rule and the practice applicable to the case, when a vote was taken on the Chair's decision, which was sustained by a vote of 30 against 14.

Mr. CRITTENDEN was not ready to pronounce his judgment on this question. He asked the courtesy and justice of the Senate that it be postponed till Wednesday. Lost by yeas 25, nays 29.

Mr. DOUGLAS spoke zealously in favor of the postponement asked by the Senator from Kentucky, saying the high character of that Senator who had served the country with distinction, before some of those who now refused his request were born, should insure that. He asked it in no factious or sinister view.

Mr. TOOMBS replied to Mr. DOUGLAS, and urged an immediate vote.

Mr. PUGH argued, that we must have the bill from the House before the Senate could proceed another step.

Mr. GREEN, in reply, declared the Senate violated no parliamentary law in proceeding now. They had not to vote on the bill now. The only question for our decision is, whether the Senate will or will not concur in the report of the Conference Committee.

Mr. SEWARD said that as the Senator from Kentucky (Mr. CRITTENDEN) was the author of the amendments to the Senate bill, which were adopted by the House, he is parliamentarily the person bearing the responsibility of a great measure, and should be accorded the brief postponement he requests. The opposition in the Senate are no longer two or three; they are a power, they can be heard, and must be heard. They have the same responsibilities and accountability as the majority, for there is, perhaps, little difference between the services to the country of an honest and patriotic minority and of the majority. As to the parliamentary phase of this question, the written law is plain, that the bill is in the House of Representatives.

Mr. BELL took many technical exceptions to the form of the report.

Mr. BRIGHT complained that the minority had sprung a new question. He maintained they would look in vain for any precedent to prevent the majority from acting as they propose to do.

Mr. BAYARD replied to Mr. SEWARD urging that expediency demands immediate action, and that courtesy does not require that a distracting question shall be kept open for the conveniences of one Senator.

Mr. CAMERON retained an unpleasant reminiscence of the last night-session, and did not want another. He therefore moved that the Senate adjourn. Lost, y 29 against 22.

Mr. CRITTENDEN made a lengthened general reply.

Mr. BIGLER spoke to the effect that the parliamentary practice is conformed to in this case.

Mr. WILSON moved to adjourn.

Mr. GREEN called the yeas and nays, when the motion was lot, by ayes 19, nays 25.

Mr. CAMERON suggested that the Senate take up the subject, on the understanding that they would immediately thereafter adjourn and consider it to-morrow.

Mr. GREEN would agree to it if the opposition would name the hour to-morrow for a vote. [Cries of "No, no."]

Mr. WADE moved to lay the whole subject on the table. Lost by 25 against 17.

Mr. JOHNSON, of Arkansas, Messrs. COLLAMER, CAMERON and others then had an animated conversation as to whether the minority would compromise, and name the hour for a vote. No result being reached,

Mr. FOSTER moved that the Senate adjourn. Lost by 26 against 17.

Mr. CLARK then addressed the Senate on the general merits of the question. From the time he concluded till 7½ o'clock the Senate was wholly occupied in attempts to come to an understanding and in defeating motions of various descriptions.

Messrs. WILSON, GREEN, IVERSON, BROWN, HOUSTON, COLLAMER and others took part in the proceedings.

Finally it was agreed that the subject be made the special order for to-morrow at 12½.

The debate was conducted in a genial spirit, and was without noticeable feature.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, Monday, April 26.

Mr. QUITMAN asked leave to introduce a joint resolution concerning the admission of new States into the Union.

Mr ENGLISH objected.

Cries for the reading of Mr. QUITMAN'S resolution followed.

The Speaker sustained Mr. ENGLISH'S point of order as a privileged question was already pending.

Mr. QUITMAN said his resolution was to apply only to the future.

The Speaker stated the question to be on agreeing to the amended motion to postpone the report of the Committee of Conference on the Kansas bill till the second Monday in May.

Mr. HARRIS, of Illinois, asked unanimous consent for the postponement of its consideration till Wednesday.

Mr. ENGLISH acquiesced, but various other gentlemen objected.

Mr. MARSHALL, of Kentucky—If the consideration is postponed until the second Monday in May, it will not be in order to move the previous question.

Mr. CLINGMAN, of North Carolina—It is in order now.

Mr. MARSHALL moved to lay the Report of the Committee of Conference on the table, and inquired, if the motion prevailed whether it would not terminate all legislation and leave Kansas in the position she was before the application was made for her admission.

The Speaker replied that in his opinion it would dispose of the whole matter.

Mr. STEPHENS, of Georgia, asked for a call of the House.

The call was ordered by 123 Yeas to 70 Nays.

Several gentlemen proposed that the pending question be postponed till Wednesday, and during the conversational debate Mr. SEWARD, of Georgia, said he wanted immediate action. The Kansas bill ought to be defeated or carried through. He wanted an end put to the controversy.

Two hundred and eight members answered to their names.

Mr. MARSHALL withdrew his motion to lay the report on the table.

The question then recurred on the motion to postpone the report until the second Monday in May.

Mr. STANTON, of Ohio, said two days had already been spent in taking two votes. He was willing, by common consent, to let the question go over till Wednesday.

Mr. GROW, of Penn., interposed, saying, "But it will not go over by common consent."

Mr. STANTON remarked that Mr. HILL, who made the motion to postpone until the 2d of May, was now absent. He (STANTON) took it for granted that the motion was made in order, meanwhile, to make up his (HILL'S) opinion. If the measure was postponed until that time, much light would be reflected on the question from various sections of the confederacy. The subject is now presented in a new or different form. The gentlemen from Georgia (STEPHENS) has heretofore been against the submission of the question to the people.

The Speaker reminded Mr. STANTON that the debate must be confined to the mere question of postponement. He was prepared as much to vote to-day as he would be six months hence.

Mr. STANTON continued. He was willing to go home, like a full-grown man, and face the responsibility before his constituents, without waiting for any objections to be trumped up. There must be some secret motive for a postponement till the second Monday in May, looking to future political movements.

The Speaker reminded Mr. STANTON that he could not impugn the motives of gentlemen.

Mr. STANTON replied that he did not say they were bad motives. He had a right to pronounce a eulogy on gentlemen. [Laughter.] The country was disgusted and sick with this question, and want it settled and attention given to the important business of the country.

A conversational debate ensued as to the propriety of postponing the Kansas question to Wednesday next, instead of the second Monday in May.

Mr. HARRIS, of Illinois, withdrew his motion for Wednesday, seeing that there was a diversity of opinion on the subject.

The House proceeded to vote on the pending motion to postpone the further consideration of the report of the Committee of Conference till the second Monday in May, and it was disagreed to, 100 against 104.

On motion of Mr. STEPHENS, the consideration of the report was postponed to 1 o'clock on Wednesday.

The Deficiency bill was returned from the Senate, with amendments, two of which the House disagreed to, namely, that striking out $4,000 for the payment of the House reporters for the Globe, and that striking out the provision for the settlement of the accounts of the late Clerk of the House.

Mr. J. GLANCY JONES offered a resolution that during the present week it shall be in order, each day, for the Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union, to take a recess till 7 o'clock in the evening, for general debate only.

During the contest as to whether the resolution should now be finally voted on, or whether the House should adjourn,

Mr. SPINNER said he had a proposition which would be adopted. In response to cries of "read it," the Clerk began reading a preamble, incorporating an extract from the Burlington Hawkeye newspaper, alleging that an order was received from Commissioner HENDRICKS to locate 6,000 acres at the Council Bluffs land sale in the name of Senator BRIGHT, and adding that, of course, the order was complied with out of office hours, and Mr. BRIGHT had a nice slice of the public lands at a single haul, &c.

The Speaker stopped the Clerk from reading, saying that the paper contained a reflection upon a member of the coördinate branch of Congress.

Mr. WASHBURN, of Maine, wanted to know whether the Speaker held that Mr BRIGHT was a member of the Senate. [Laughter on the Republican side.]

The Speaker was understood to say that he did.

Mr. GROW suggested that the charge was against the Commissioner of the Land Office and not against Mr. BRIGHT, who was incidentally involved.

Mr. WASHBURN, of Maine, said that general consent was given for reading of the article.

The Speaker remarked that the Manual expressly provided that reflection should not be made on members of the coördinate branch even in debate.

Mr. HUGHES said the attack was on a Senator from his State. He availed himself of the rule, and asked that the offensive language be taken down at the Clerk's desk.

The Speaker replied that this matter did not come before the House in the manner which the rules contemplated.

Mr. HUGHES hoped the House would indulge him in saying that the imputation— [He was here interrupted by a general cry of "Order" from the Republican side.]

Mr. CLAY—I call the gentlemen on that side to order.

There was much confusion throughout these proceedings.

Mr. MARSHALL, of Kentucky, observed that merely an extract from the Burlington Hawkeye had been read, and no accompanying proposition had yet been reported.

Mr. ENGLISH said there was nothing in the case, and was perfectly willing that the House should investigate it.

The House returned to the consideration of Mr.

Jesus' resolution, and, finding itself without a quorum, adjourned.

DR. DUDLEY A. TYNG.

Sermon by Rev. Dr. Tyng on the Death of His Son.

The Rev. Dr. STEPHEN H. TYNG, of this City, preached at the Church of the Covenant, in Philadelphia, on Sunday last, a sermon upon the death of his son, the late Rev. DUDLEY A. TYNG. We copy the following interesting report of it from the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin:

FUNERAL SERMON.

"For this child I prayed; and the Lord hath given me my petition which I asked of him: Therefore, also, I have lent him unto the Lord; as long as he liveth he shall be lent to the Lord."—The 1st book of Samuel, 1st chapter, 27th and 28th verses.

My friends, I can make no apology for a father's grateful tribute to the memory of a beloved son. I must trust in the affection and sympathy of those who hear me, while I simply speak on as my poor, wounded, but truly thankful heart shall bubble up within me.

The 18th day of April had been long fixed on as the Anniversary of the Sunday Schools of St. George's Church, in New-York; and this passage of Scripture, which I have just read to you, was selected as the subject of my anniversary address to the teachers and children on that occasion; intending to bring out to view the privilege of prayer for children, and the vast blessedness of being a child of prayer. The wisdom and goodness of my gracious Father arrested the performance of that duty, to summon me to the bedside of my dear son; and the Sabbath which I should have joyfully passed with the gathered numerous children of my beloved flock there, I passed in retired ministrations in this vale of trial and sorrow.

Many weeks since I had engaged to pass this Sabbath (the 25th of April) with my son in the ministry for his own Church; and I looked forward for the joyful meeting with my accustomed delight. And I am permitted to be here to fulfill the duty this day; but oh, in circumstances how sadly painful! I felt the divine call sounding in my heart. I must hear it; I must speak of him; I must speak for him, of Christ. I hear the word of the Lord spoken to Ezekiel in the 24th chapter, 16th verse, "Son of man, behold, I take away the desire of thine eyes with a stroke; yet neither shalt thou mourn or weep, neither shall thy tears run down. Forbear to cry, make no mourning for the dead, bind the tire of thine head upon thee, and put on thy shoes upon thy feet, and cover not thy lips, and eat not the bread of men." In reply to this divine word, my sinking heart takes hold of the word of the Lord in the 71st Psalm, 16th verse, "I will go in the strength of the Lord God; I will make mention of thy righteousness, even of thine only. O God, thou hast brought me from my youth, and hitherto have I declared thy wondrous work. Now, also, when I am old and gray-headed, O God, forsake me not until I have showed thy strength unto this generation, and thy power to every one that is to come." I now, my beloved friends, take the same blessed passage of the word of God, expressing the joy of a thankful parent's heart, over a child of prayer given to God, acknowledged and accepted by God, who heareth prayer, as the subject of my special address to you to-night. I would fain use it on this occasion as a grateful commemoration of a son whose praises others must proclaim, but over whose precious life now finished, as a gift of God and a child of prayer, a father's heart must be permitted to speak in a simple testimony as a father feels. I fear you must have much patience with me. I will stumble on the best I can, as the Lord shall help me in the work I have undertaken. This precious child was given to me at our country parsonage, Prince George's County, Md., on the 12th day of January, 1825. I was thirty miles from home at the time of his birth, in the discharge of a distant duty on my extensive missionary field. His feeble, youthful mother was alone in our solitary mansion, with one little, elder child, and a single servant woman in an out-house, at midnight, when need of immediate aid was felt, she was obliged to rise, unlock a distant door to arouse the sleeping servant, and send her to the nearest neighbor, perhaps nearly quarter of a mile distant, leaving her thus entirely alone. Scarcely had the servant returned with a kind female friend, when this dear boy was given to her in perfect health and perfect security. None who knew that sainted mother's elevated walk of piety, and calm and self-possessed firmness of character, would doubt that another Friend had been near her through that whole trying crisis; and that the testimony of HANNAH had been most truly and literally fulfilled in this very beginning of the life of this beloved boy. "For this child I prayed; and the Lord hath given me my petition which I asked of Him." His first four years were passed amid the beautiful scenery of our calm country residence; and a love of the country, and happiness in the country, seemed to be an intense principle of his being. Through his whole career he was invigorated by its employments and its atmosphere. He invariably drooped when he was obliged to leave them for a crowded city residence.

In May, 1829, nearly twenty-nine years ago, it was the will of God most unexpectedly to remove us all to Philadelphia, to St. Paul's Church—a church in which we had not a single acquaintance; but He has been pleased to raise to us friends of incalculable, everlasting worth. There we found many friends, whose love is undying, and whose kindness to me and mine, when we were as yet but strangers in the land, God has owned with blessings from His own hands in thousands and thousands of manifestations. Here first my little one saw a Sunday School. DUDLEY was in the Infant School taught around the chancel of that church, which some of you remember so well. There he indulged with delight that love for song which seemed to open with his very being, a gift which was his unspeakable joy. Never can I forget how our little ones united in our hymn of family praise each night and morning! At the first succeeding anniversary of the Sunday School, in January, 1830, he sang, with his little companions in the Infant School, for their anniversary hymn, Bishop HEBER'S words, then just published as a piece of music:

"Brightest and best of the Sons of the morning."

It was the business only of week before last, to teach that very song to his little boys, to perpetuate it upon their tongues also. The work was all as new to me as it was to him. Never did I work in the Sunday School till I came to St. Paul's Church; and I recall a youthful father's heart as I stood before him on this occasion, and saw his face beaming with the delight of the employment, and the unspeakable pleasure which the child that learns to love the Lord, finds in the exercises of the Sunday School. In May, 1832, God was pleased to take from us both that which was the dearest thing on earth—as bright a light as ever shone in the habitation of man; whose wonderful moral beauty, and mental greatness, seemed in a degree to have been reproduced in the character of her son; and one of whose dying testimonies to her husband's fainting heart was "my dear, give your yourself no anxiety about my children; God will bring them all to himself—that is His covenant with me." And her covenant, as Hannah's, has been fulfilled—"For this child I prayed, and the Lord hath given me my petition which I asked of him: There fore also I have lent him to the Lord; as long as he liveth he shall be lent to the Lord." Oh, mothers! mothers! what a charge you have! What a privilege of grace is in your hand! What a ministry from God do you hold! What a divine covenant attends and blesses and crowns your work! Can praying mothers ever be disappointed? Will you be forsaken? Nay! Trust in God, and his doing good—"in the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not your hand—in due season you shall reap, if you faint not!" The education of this dear boy was a great delight. The precocity of his intellect, and the extreme quickness of his perception, anticipated much of the need of instruction. He early attained the preparation for College, under a faithful instructor, who survives him, and who perhaps is listening to me to-night—I know not. At 6 years of age he read mature Latin authors, and at that very period obtained a beautiful copy of Virgil as a prize for his ability to read that author. In the autumn of 1839 he entered the University of Pennsylvania, where he was graduated with distinguished honor in 1843. This early period of his youth he passed without vice, or any other wanderings from the path of true excellence, than are incident to the tempers of youth. He was never irascible, never perverse; truthful, sincere, and tenderly affectionate; but he was proud and sensitive to insult, and quick at self-vindication, though instantly susceptible to generous, confiding government. We endeavored to bring up our children under the influence of united firmness and affection, and God has been pleased remarkably to favor my poor, worthless efforts with his blessing there. O, fathers! fathers! I could have much to tell you of the faithfulness of the Covenant God, as He sends down His promises and blessings from fathers to their children. Be ye faithful to God, and God will never be unfaithful to you.

In the Winter of 1841, when he was 16 years of age, the appointed time came for the manifestation of the grace of God in the conversion of this vessel of His choice. A lovely young Christian woman, long since enjoying her Saviour's presence in glory, was, perhaps, the immediate instrument under God of calling the wandering heart to the God of his salvation. She made him the chosen companions of her walks, that she might be to him as she was to many besides, an eminent, divine blessing; converted, under God's blessing upon the ministry of the father, she longed to render back her thankfulness in being the instrument in the conversion of the child.

Late one night, when the family had retired to their rest, and left me to my closing hour of solitude in my study, I heard the sound of feet descending the stairs. It was this dear boy, who had risen from his bed in sleepless sorrow. As he came into my room and pressed his arms around my neck, he said, "Dear father, I cannot sleep; I am so sinful. Father! father! will you pray for me?" We knelt together in prayer; and I gave him counsel for a short season suited to his state of mind, when he retired to his bed again. It pleased the Lord to separate him from his mother's womb, to call him by His grace, and to reveal His Son in him. He found, and he ever afterward enjoyed the blessed gift of the Father's adopting love, as it is made manifest in an acceptance of Jesus Christ.

In April, 1841, he was admitted to confirmation, and on the first Sunday of the succeeding August I received him to the table of the Lord. His whole character was changed. The sweetest gentleness and affection ruled his spirit and his manner; his life was meekness, purity and love. He rose in our habitation a sweet and gentle light from heaven—steady, uniform, attractive and grateful. He loved intensely; he was loved intensely in return. O, how much, how much! a loving parent's heart watching over such a child, alone, in a concourse of people like this, can know.

His heart was immediately directed by the Holy Spirit to the ministry of the word of God; and when his College course was finished he went to the Seminary of Virginia, where he attained, in three years' study, his education for the sacred work. A fellow student writes me since his departure, "There his student's life was most remarkable. It was my lot to be associated with him as junior coadjutor in several missionary enterprises in the vicinity of the Seminary. Cheerful, indomitable energy marked his action, and under the superintendence of a lively interest and earnest spirit in whatever he undertook, he gave promise even then of what the Church esteemed and now have lost since."

In July, 1846, he was ordained in Alexandria by Bishop MEADE. Of his ministry I need not speak. The Church around has seen it—the result of it is on high—its testimony will live forever, forever.

He was first with me in New York, for some eight months, as my assistant; then he was called to Columbus, Ohio, where he received a second ordination from Bishop McILVAINE, who has testified, on Thursday last, that he was a father and a friend to him in his youthful labors. After a few years' ministry in Columbus, he panted for a country life, and he removed to Charlestown, Virginia. There he was again unwillingly summoned to Cincinnati, Ohio. From Cincinnati he came, by pressing solicitation from those in whom he has been taught from his childhood to confide, to try the ministry in this vast city. Of this I cannot speak; of this I must not speak. God avengeth his own elect by pouring blessings upon those who despise them on earth. Here, you are witnesses for him how holily, justly and unblamably he has behaved himself among you that are bereaved; how gentle he was among you even as a nurse cherisheth her children; how willing he was to have imparted to you, not the gospel of God only, but his own soul, because ye were dear unto him. Ye remember his labor and travail night and day. He has gone in and out in this city in many trials of character; and particularly I have surveyed his course with intense concern, but with intense confidence and gratification—as much in the day of his darkest trial, as in the hour of his highest exaltation; and his God and Saviour has vindicated him, honored him and crowned him here in the presence of this whole community. His judgment he left with his God. Reviled, he reviled not again; and amply and thoroughly has that gracious God paid his faithfulness, in keeping that which his faithful servant covenanted unto him. The affectionate devotion of this beloved flock, who have clung around him with longing desire, has been a cordial to his spirit in trial, and sweet encouragement in the labors of his work. Many will rise up and call him blessed; and the cheering affection which has here soothed and blessed him is an obligation which Jesus will own, and which Jesus will recompense with renewed and abundant gifts of grace and love from Heaven, upon them all.

Oh, my friends, not a cup of cold water that any of you have given to that darling boy of mine shall ever be forgotten. A stricken father's heart blesses you all. A surrounding church honors and approves your work. Hold it up, hold it up! and make it a monument of the undying permanency of great PRINCIPLE—a monument of unchanging fidelity, of Christian fellowship and Christian friendship here on earth. But a delineation of his public ministry I shall not undertake. I could not but rejoice with a parent's love in its honor and success; I could not but admire as a man its nobleness of principle, its vigor of intellect, its command of influence, its independence of vicious control; I could not but praise God as a Christian for the clearness and boldness of his proclamation of the truth, and his uniform and unflinching testimony to the unsearchable riches of Christ—which are in Christ Jesus the Lord. Oh! what a cordial it is to my heart, that no man ever heard from him a trumpet with an uncertain sound! The suddenness with which this very remarkable ministry has been completed—in the morning of his usefulness and honor—I receive but as the fulfilling of that divine promise which my covenant God made: "I will bring the blind by a way that they know not; I will lead them in paths that they have not known; I will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight. These things will I do unto them, and not forsake them." I have not been allowed to have one single doubt of the Lord's gracious purposes, or of the certainty of his accomplishing unbounded good in this dispensation. I have been permitted to bow, and am ready to cry out "Oh! sweet submission! sweet submission!" and, like Abraham, would I take the Isaac whom I have loved, and in whom every promise seemed to be centered for my poor heart, and offer the whole unto the Lord, to be the Lord's forever! O, God! O, God! thy holy will be done! Already, beloved, the clouds are breaking, and light from heaven is streaming through upon my mind. What unprecedented honors were paid to his memory in that sublime and overwhelming spectacle of his funeral! How strange seemed the fact that a private, youthful minister of Christ, scarce three years living in the place, should thus gather crowds of sympathising thousands literally to stop the passages of the streets of a busy city of men, in the very noon of earthly engagements! How wonderful the testimony which collected and venerated ministers of Christ bore to his character and fidelity and usefulness! How remarkable the fact that already we hear of young men giving themselves to Christ, moved by the Spirit's use of his peculiar departure! Oh, I have not a single doubt—I have not a single doubt that this event is to be the instrument of God in glorifying Jesus, and we shall read in living epistles the Lord's reasons for gathering so soon a messenger so much beloved. My griefs are swallowed up in my view of a public loss; my sorrows are turned into joy in a sure conviction of God's fidelity. In regard to the nature of this sad providence, it is one of those sad effects which, in the manner of its occurrence would seem to be, in any doctrine of human chances, simply impossible. I have tried again and again to act it out at the spot, in imitation, if it were possible, of the strange scene. I have taken an able mechanician, a machinist there, and described to him the process, and the simple view of his examination was, "it seems utterly impossible that any such effect should be produced." Yet, this was the Lord's appointment, and the Lord ordered it, and it was well! yea, the very best—"even so, Father for so it seemeth good in thy sight!" An examination of his poor, wounded body, after his death, has much relieved my mind, in that it has demonstrated to me that the original wound was certain death; and no human skill could ever have reached the case. The amputation of the limb at least had the blessed effect of removing that which was exceedingly oppressive in its connection, and thus prolonging his life, it may be for eight and forty hours at least, for his calm and rational dying testimony, and in soothing and comforting his wonderful departure. I was attendant upon him from Saturday evening last to the hour of his departure, on Monday, at 1:40 P. M. The amputation had been performed at 3 o'clock on Saturday morning. It would seem that God had been especially preparing him for the trial.

On his return to his distant home on Sunday night, previous to this sorrowful event, he said to his wife after he came to the house, "I have enjoyed my ride home so much; I have had such sweet and pleasant communion with God all the way upon the road." O, this was the key to all his feelings in the hour and the work of the trial through which he was to pass. This was the provision for his journey through the valley of the shadow of death; and it is a coincidence a little remarkable, that on that very night, he found her reading in her solitude, the life of SUMMERFIELD; and having just arrived at the period of his youthful departure, she said, "How sad to see such an early death! If you had only been a few moments later, I should have finished the whole book to-night!"—little imagining that another youth was soon to follow in the same peculiar experience.

His calmness and placidity were characteristic through the whole of this week's trial and sorrow, and yet they were most remarkable. His languor and prostration were extreme, and constant attention, although actually local, was necessary. He had the most faithful and sympathizing medical attention and watchfulness; there was given also an attendance, the faithfulness and assiduity and tenderness of which I may not attempt to describe, and could not, justly, if I would. Oh, one wonders not when such sights are seen, that men are ready to speak of angels ministering, and with angel hands. But all these were vain—vain, except to relieve and comfort him. Nothing of recovery was to be given; the mark of the Lamb upon a soul now ripe for glory was perfectly distinct. He must go. He had come to the place where two roads met. The Lord had need of him, and Jesus was to recieve the palm and glory for his triumph, which should be cast before him in the way!

Early on the Monday morning, after a feeble and wasteful night, he said to his mother who was bathing his body and limbs, "Dear mother, you are nursing my poor, torn and wounded body, but angels will guard and nurse my torn and suffering soul." At nine o'clock, I perceived him sinking away rapidly, and when his wife and myself were alone by him, I announced to him my conviction that the glorious end was rapidly approaching. He had cherished strong hopes of recovery, in the impression that his work could not have been completed, and he had yet much to do. Yet he had previously, early on this morning, delivered up all his earthly concerns into my hands, and said with sweet composure, "Father, will you take charge of them all for me?" and when I answered him in the affirmative, "Now, father, I will think of them no more."

He received the annunciation of his approaching death with the utmost calmness and delight, replying, "My father, dear, I dearly love you all, but I had rather be with Jesus than with my dearest ones on earth. Lay me straight in the bed, father, and cover me up, and let me wait my Father's time." We arranged his bed as well as was possible, and he lay in quietness in it for a little while. His friends and family were gathered immediately around his bed as I announced to them the certainty of his approaching departure. We watched his blessed and animated countenance in its repose. During this interval he spoke occasionally, in brief remarks to those around him, which need have no place here. But at this moment one testimony was given which has been referred to already in the public prints, and though I should not have introduced it to the public myself, (for I esteem such brief addresses as beyond the right of public knowledge,) yet it is my duty, it having been proclaimed, to repeat it correctly. When his beloved and faithful physician had returned from a short absence from the house, a little before 10 o'clock, he said to him, "Doctor, my friends have given me up; they say I am dying. Is that your opinion?" The Doctor, after a few moments examination, answered him in the affirmative. "Then," said he, "Doctor, I have loved you much as a friend; I long to love you as a brother in Christ Jesus. I cannot repay the obligations I am under to you, unless I am permitted to bring you to a Saviour's feet. Let me entreat you now to come to Jesus, that you may be to me forever a dear brother in Christ, and that you may be far more useful than I have ever been."

He was presently asked if he had any messages to send to his brethren in the ministry, or to his congregation. He answered us, "Not now, I am too much exhausted." Again he reposed for a few moments, and then opened his eyes with a very elevated expression, and said in a loud and very distinct voice, "Now, father, I am ready. Tell them, 'Let us all stand up for Jesus—let us all stand in Christ Jesus in prayer,—accepted in Christ, having no other claims than His righteousness, that Christ may be glorified in us forever.'" He again sank in repose and quiet for a season, and then again he raised his eyes and voice, and said in equal distinctness, "Now, father, I want to send a message to my church. I love that church; I love the principles on which it has been founded; I want to see those principles established in the church; I want to see men gathered into the church on those principles such as shall be saved. I wish my people to go on vigorously and unitedly, and establish that church for the glory of Christ forever."

Much exhausted by such effect, he sank at these intervals into perfect quietness; and then again he suddenly aroused, and said to us, "Sing! Sing! Can you not sing?" We hesitated—saw it was impossible, when he himself struck the words, and we followed him, and we sung together the first two verses of that hymn—but he could sing no more—no more could we—sorrow silenced us all. In reference to his own death, he said, "I wish to say in regard to this dispensation, I am perfectly satisfied—I have not one fault to find with it. I say it emphatically, I have not one fault to find with it. I desire only that it may be abundantly sanctified to us all." His beautiful private, personal address to his wife, and two addresses to his family and particularly to his little children, who were severally brought to him, and to whom he gave separately a father's parting kiss and blessing, these were all so spiritual, so sweet, so solemn, that they can never be effaced from the memory of those who heard and saw the remarkable scene which they made up.

But after all this passed by his powers of endurance were rapidly failing, and he felt himself just going; he turned to me again with the sweetest smile, "Now, father dear, kiss me once more;" and as I kissed him he said, "Good night, dear father." Soon after this, at about twenty minutes before eleven o'clock, his mind began to wander, and all his ungoverned imaginations were connected with his Church, and his expressions even then were beautiful and affectionate. He had an hour of imaginary contest with some persons who detained him in the Church and would not release him, crying to them, as his mind roamed, "Dear brethren. Oh, this is true—you will kill me; that Sunday night's sermon of an hour and a half, killed me—let us go home—why will you all kill yourselves?" Then again, as if a crowd was waiting—"Open the doors and let them come in!" I never spoke to him. During this period, even, he knew us and would answer us with perfect intelligence, constantly begging us to "go home," and I could only put him off in peace by telling him that at 12 o'clock we would go home; your Father's time would come. He seemed at last to pass this contest, and I said to him as he lay down, relaxed and prostrate,

"My dear son, have you been surrounded by enemies?"

"Yes, father."

"But," said I, "Jesus was with you, darling."

"Oh, yes, certainly."

"And are you now at rest?"

"Yes, perfectly."

"Is the prospect bright before your eyes?"

"Oh, yes, it is glorious."

But the power of life was now fast going, and he seemed no longer conscious of our presence. I aroused him again and asked him

"Do you see me, my dear son?"

"No."

"Do your hear me?"

"No."

"Do you not know your father's voice?"

"No."

His wife made the same attempts, but with no other result. I then said,

"My darling son, do you know Jesus?"

"Oh, yes!" said he, in a voice of wonderful strength and deliberation, "Oh, yes! I know Jesus—I have a steadfast trust in Jesus—a calm and steadfast trust." He spoke it with astonishing distinctness.

This was, perhaps, within an hour of his departure. After this he could say no more, connectedly; yet, one half hour afterwards, perhaps, I thought he might still be conscious to my voice, and I asked him,

"Are you happy, my dear son?"

And he answered me very distinctly,

"Oh, perfectly, perfectly!"

How strange! They were the very words with which his sainted mother closed her testimony to me six and twenty years before, within five minutes of her death. From that moment he gently sobbed away his life like an infant who had fallen asleep in crying. His sobs became fainter and fainter, until the last one gently passed, and all was quietness and rest. The same tender, faithful ones who had nursed him, and bathed his fevered head night and day with such uninterrupted devotion, as gently closed his eyes in death, and placed his lifeless head back upon the pillow, a pattern of the tenderness of affection, and endurance of fidelity which adorns the nearest relations of human life. Thus, my beloved friends, thus have we all agreed to lend him to the Lord as long as he liveth. He was a child of prayer from his birth. Long since a mother's inwrought fervent prayers were turned to praise; but who shall dare to say a Christian mother's love can die, or her maternal interest refuse to embrace every possible advantage which God may grant unknown to us in continued prayer?

A father's poor prayer continually offered through all this brilliant life, and youth, and energy and grace—a Christian wife, united in the heartfelt intercession in all her power of union with his cares and labors—hundreds of souls brought to a knowledge of a Saviour's love through his ministry by the Holy Ghost, have had their part in this advocacy with God. Thousands and tens of thousands of Christians in spiritual fellowship have combined, especially in these last suffering days, in this united sacrifice of prayer. Oh! I have no comfort, perhaps, greater than this. My life-long power and effort has been in labors that all the people of Christ might be one. In nothing did I live the unity of my dear boy with me, so much as in his solemn, cordial purpose to work with me in this great line of Christian duty.

I bless every praying soul that has thought of him. Oh, beloved Christian think of me! Sometimes breathe a prayer for this poor shattered tabernacle, that it may yet fulfill the work that God had graciously assigned it, and be laid aside with equal faith and equal hope! That he may be made conqueror—that he may triumph in the power and glory of the Lord whom he loved—that Jesus may be honored in him, and his Gospel advanced by him, has been the prayer, the heart's of us all. "For this child we prayed, and the Lord hath given us our petition which we asked of him." He has carried him through a triumphant part to a glorious result. He has made those who opposed him flee from him—He has given him rest from affliction, usefulness in the Church of God and a spotless reputation to leave, after him among men—glory everlasting with Jesus and His saints.

What could we ask more? Therefore "We have lent him to the Lord; as long as he liveth he shall be lent to the Lord." Mine! oh, yes, mine forever, to lend to Jesus! I would loan Him every child I had, to be gathered in such a harvest of grace and truth and glory! We shall go to him—he will not return to us; his life is "hid with Christ in God; and when Christ who is his life shall appear, then shall he also appear and be with Him in glory." Oh beloved! This is enough! This is enough! It compensates for every care; it pays for every labor; it removes every sorrow; it explains every mystery; it wipes away every tear; it fills the heart with joy unspeakable! Nearer, still nearer, oh, my God, art thou bringing us to thee! Nearer, still nearer, does this poor suffering soul desire to come! And, though he was the breath of my nostrils—the anointed of the Lord, under whose shadow I had hoped to pass my weary age, and to be gathered to my tomb beneath his ministry, around me, with unspeakable delight, in the knowledge that he should stand in gaps that I have left, I have nothing to say, but "Bless the Lord, O, my soul! and all that is within me, bless His holy name!" "Let the House of Aaron say, His mercy endureth forever." Yes! my House of Aaron shall say so, by God's blessing, with a thankful heart!

How I thank Him that I have been permitted this night to do His work; that He has so strengthened me that I am now carried through, when I hardly dared to hope that I could stand here and utter anything of what I have been permitted thoroughly to proclaim. Oh, God is with me! God is with me! His everlasting arms are under me! His eternal righteousness—it abideth forever!

The delivery of the sermon was calm and steady, and impressed one with the idea of emotion governed and reined in with a hand firm enough to gauge and measure every pulse and every throb. Among the congregation self-control was not so complete, and hundreds were weeping at once. Singing and prayer closed the exercises with great solemnity, and the crowded audience sought the cool air with a feeling of relief mingled with their solemnity, although they had shown no signs of impatience during the course of this affecting and remarkable discourse.

Amusements.

CONCERTS.—A curious and highly interesting concert will be given to-night at Mozart Hall, by J. G. MAEDER, the well-known and esteemed composer and professor of music. In addition to the usual musical attractions of such an intertainment, (the programme contains many of the best known names in the City,) Mr. BURTON, Mr. BROUGHAM and Mr WALCOT contribute their services. With such attractions it will be hard indeed if Mr. MAEDER'S first annual concert is not a bumper.

Miss BRAINERD'S Concert takes place at Dodworth's to-night. The programme is good and will be interpreted by the beneficiaire and Mr. GUSTAV SATTER, Mr. APTOMMAS, and Mr. W. H. COOK.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—To-night is the first Beethoven night. The programme contains some immortal works.

City Items.

EXCITEMENT AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—Messrs. WILKES and DARCY, of Porter's Spirit of the Times, were arrested last evening at the Academy of Music, on a warrant issued by City Judge RUSSELL, on complaint of Mr. ULLMAN, who alleged that he feared the parties would create a disturbance at the Academy.

The prisoners were taken to one of the Station-houses, where Recorder BARNARD opened Court and held them to bail. The affair created a good deal of excitement about the Academy, and crowds thronged the Station-house to which the prisoners were brought.

The Boards of Firemen and Engineers, of the Fire Department, had a meeting last evening at Firemen's Hall, to nominate candidates for Assistant Engineer, in place of NOAH L. FARNHAM, resigned. WM HACKET, Foreman of Engine Company, No. 20; RICHARD P. MOORE, Foreman of Engine Company, No. 42, and THEODORE N. KEYS, of Engine Company, No. 41, having received the largest number of votes, were declared candidates. The election by the firemen at large, takes place on Thursday evening.

THE LIVER INVIGORATOR.—PREPARED by Dr. SANFORD, compounded entirely from Gums is one of the best Purgative and Liver medicines now before the public.

These Gums remove all morbid or bad matter from the system, supplying in their place a healthy flow of bile, invigorating the stomach, causing food to digest well, purifying the blood, giving tone and health to the whole machinery, removing the cause of the disease—effecting a radical cure.

Bilious attacks are cured, and, what is better, prevented by the occasional use of the Liver Invigorator.

Only one dose taken before retiring prevents night mare.

One dose of two teaspoonfulls will always relieve Sick Headache.

Only one dose immediately relieves Colic, while

Only one bottle is needed to throw out of the system the effects of medicine after a long sickness.

One dose, taken a short time before eating, gives vigor to the appetite, and makes the food digest well.

One dose, often repeated, cures Chronic Diarrhœa in its worst forms, while Summer and Bowel complaints yield almost to the first dose.

We take pleasure in recommending this medicine as a preventive for Fever and Ague, Chill Fever, and all Fevers of a Bilious type. It operates with certainty, and thousands are willing to testify to its wonderful virtues.

All who use it are giving their unanimous testimony in its favor.

MEDICAL.

DR. MAGNIN'S LUCINA CORDIAL, OR ELIXIR OF LOVE.—From the earliest ages stimulants have been resorted to as a means of reviving the energies of Nature. Of this fact, both sacred and profane history assure us. But the great difficulty has been to find an exhilarant which would produce the desired effect continuously, and entail no subsequent depression. This grand desideratum, sought for by every physician from the time of Galen to the present day, is accomplished at last! The LUCINA CORDIAL restores and permanently invigorates the broken-down system; nay, more, it replaces natural weakness with energy and strength. The desponding it revives the feeble it endows with vigor; and the cheerfulness and strength which it restores or creates, it also preserves. To the sickly wife it imparts that degree of vital force necessary to the crowning joy and great object of matrimony. To the debilitated husband it gives the nervous and muscular energy which characterizes manhood. In all cases of nervous diseases, low spirits, indigestion, liver complaint, indisposition to mental exertion, lassitude, emaciation, impotence, &c.—in fact, in all complaints, acute and chronic, which depress and weigh down the mind and body, it is an absolute, infallible specific. Ladies of delicate constitution, subject to those derangements peculiar to the feeble of their sex, will obtain immediate relief from its use.

Persons wishing the Lucina Cordial, by sending a remittance to Dr. MAGNIN, No. 203 Fulton-st., New-York, or to E. FLINT, druggist, corner of 9th-av., and 28th-st., can have it safely packed and sent to any part of the world. Price $3 per bottle, or two bottles for $5.

M. till 8 P. M., except Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, till 5 P. M. only. The Doctor's MEDICAL ADVISER AND MARRIAGE GUIDE, nearly 400 pages, 100 picture illustrations, is $1. Sold and mailed also by TOWNSEND, No. 222 Broadway, New-York. It gives the advertised medicines and should be seen by the married, single and the afflicted, before adopting any treatment, as it fully exposes the charlatans infesting this and other cities.

The Quarantine Buildings at Seguine's Point Burned.

NO CLUE TO THE INCENDIARIES.

The Quarantine buildings at Seguine's Point were entirely destroyed by fire during Sunday night. The buildings, which were erected about eight months ago—two hospitals, a wash-house, and a small cook-house—were of wood, the walls filled in with brick resting on brick foundations. They were situated within an inclosure comprising three acres of ground, separated from the rest of the 50 acres which the Government owns on the Point by a wooden fence about 10 feet high. The fence, which was not considered with the buildings, is surmounted by iron pickets.

About $55,000 was expended by the Commissioners of Quarantine, Messrs. HALL, BOWNE and BENSON, in purchasing the ground and erecting the buildings. The actual value of the latter was between $7,000 and $8,000. After their completion last Fall the Commissioners of Quarantine claimed that it was the duty of the Commissioners of Emigration to take charge of them as finished hospitals. The latter denied that this duty rightly devolved on them; moreover they said their funds were all appropriated to their legitimate objects, and they had no money to expend in taking care of the new hospitals. Nevertheless as the Commissioners of Quarantine refused to have anything more to do with the buildings they would consent to take charge of them with the express understanding that they should hold the Commissioners of Quarantine responsible for all the expenses thus incurred. Mr. GREGORY, whom they found in charge of the building, was continued at his post.

Mr. GREGORY has been the sole occupant of the hospitals during the Winter. On Saturday morning he came to this City to purchase provisions and remained in the City during Sundae. The people in the vicinity of Seguine's Point were aware that he was absent on this occasion, as he had been frequently on former occasions. The fire broke out about midnight, Sunday, and in an hour the buildings were reduced to ashes.

The people who residenear the grounds say they heard no noises in the night,—no crackling of embers, no roaring of flames; and everyone of the villagers with whom our reporter had an opportunity of conversing, said they knew nothing of the affair till they arose in the morning, and saw that only two high chimneys overlooking the fence were left standing on the site of the hospitals. The appearance of the ruins is neither awe-inspiring or picturesque. A necessary out-building near one of the hospitals escaped the conflagration, but of the four other buildings nothing remains but the brick foundation walls and chimneys, and heaps of burnt embers. The gate at one side of the inclosure was found open, though it had probably been locked by Mr. GREGORY, and through it undoubtedly the incendiaries gained admittance. A ladder was standing against one side of the fence, reaching to its top.

Mr. GREGORY states that a few days since he was called on by a party who appeared somewhat excited; pointing to the Susquehanna, which lies at the lower anchorage, they inquired what ship that was; and asked him if he had any yellow-fever patients in the Hospital. He answered their questions somewhat tartly, and they went away apparently very much dissatisfied.

The apprehension that the old Quarantine establishment would be distroyed, and that the patients would be sent to Seguine's Point, has lately increased the excitement in this part of the island, and many think that the hospital were set fire to, in order to prevent the inhabitants of the old Quarantine District from stealing a march on them

Dr. THOMPSON, the Health Officer, says it is not probable that any attempt will be made by the inhabitants of Staten Island to destroy the buildings at Upper Quarantine. Their destruction would involve a loss of $200,000, and by a law of the State if the Quarantine buildings are destroyed the county must bear the expenses. No clue whatever has been obtained which might lead to the apprehension of the incendiaries.

The history of the Quarantine excitement at Seguine's Point has thus far been an eventful one. The Seguine farm, on which the hospitals were located, consisting of fifty acres, were purchased by the Quarantine Commissioners of UDOPHO WOLFE, Esq., for $30,000 about a year ago. There was upon the place a fine residence worth $12,000, besides various out-buildings and a farmer's house. The purchase had scarcely been effected, when, on the night of the 7th of May, 1856, they were set on fire, and all, excepting the farm-house and ice house, were destroyed. Mr. JOEL WOLFE, the occupant of the house, lost $2,000 worth of furniture, which he was on the point of removing to the City. On the 30th of May the rest of the buildings were burned, and nothing but the ice-house remained. Mr. MORRISON, the farmer, was in the house at the time, and had a narrow escape. All his effects were destroyed. A reward of $500 was offered by the County for the arrest of the incendiaries, and the Governor of the State also offered $2,500 reward. Only one person was arrested, a Mr. LATOURETTE. A warrant was served on this person by Capt. WALLING; but he had no sooner done so than LATOURETTE caused the officer to be arrested on a charge of theft, alleging that he (LATOURETTE) missed a large sum of money shortly after the officers left the house. A suit for slander was also instituted by Judge CROPSEY against Mr. HALL, but no trial or decision has been had in either case.

The work of constructing the Hospital buildings was commenced early in June, under the protection of 25 policemen sent from the City, but the determined opposition offered by the neighbors retarded the work very much, and increased the expense of the structures more than 50 per cent. Constant rumors prevailed of intended attacks upon the buildings, and on the night of the 28th of June, the Sheriff of the County was summoned with a military force to protect the property. No attack was made, however, until the 12th of July, when at midnight an armed force of about fifty persons made a demonstration, expecting to drive off the Police, but they were met with such determined resistance by Capt. WALLING's force, that after discharging their muskets they retreated. Nobody was killed or injured. The shots were mainly fired through the top of the shanty where the Police were quartered, and were purposely aimed too high to hit any one. Since then no violent demonstrations were made until the quietly managed affair of Sunday night.

LOTTERY CAUTION.—We would respectfully caution the public against the many frauds practiced upon the community under the guise of Lotteries. There are but four States in which lotteries are legalized, viz.: Kentucky, Delaware, Maryland and Georgia, therefore, all circulars or advertisements directing parties to send to New-York or to any place in which lotteries are unlawful, can be safely set down as bogus or swindling concerns; and too much praise cannot be awarded to his Honor, Mayor TIEMANN, for the strong and successful efforts he is making towards breaking them up. SUCH A DIFFERENCE!—Put on one of KNOX's Spring style of Hats, sold at the corner of Broadway and Fulton-street, and then one of some other makers, and observe the difference it makes! KNOX's Hat imparts an air of indescribable gentlemanliness and elegance, while the other rather detracts from than adds to your graces. Try the experiment.

MONDAY, April 26, P. M.

The Official Averages of the Banks in the City of New-York, for the past week, ending Saturday, April 24, the particulars of which are advertised by each Bank separately, on another page of this paper, present in the aggregate the following changes from the previous weekly statement to Saturday, April 17:

Decrease in Loans	$341,415
Increase in Specie	920,442
Decrease in Circulation	49,325
Increase in Undrawn Deposits	1,077,868

Including the exchanges through the Clearing-house, which are deducted from the gross, in order to arrive at the undrawn deposits, and including also the Sub-Treasury statement to Saturday afternoon, the following is the general comparison with the preceding week, and also with the movement this time last year:

COMPARATIVE RECAPITULATION.

Capital	$59,631,000	$66,709,000	$66,600,000
Loans	113,391,910	111,003,476	111,344,891
Specie	11,827,861	34,113,891	33,193,449
Circulation	8,736,768	7,140,851	7,190,176
Gross Deposits	95,258,612	95,340,344	95,448,456
Exchanged	28,189,988	16,141,451	17,327,431
Undrawn	67,068,624	79,198,893	78,121,025
In Sub-Treasury	14,563,605	3,685,071	3,841,577

The Bank Statement is altogether a surprising one, even in these days of Specie accumulation and dull demand for Money. There was no particular reason to anticipate more than a stand-off, in Specie, with the average of last Monday, as a number of remittances had been made to the South, and no large sums were registered as coming in. Yet we have $920,442 added to the line of the 17th April, and a total for the 24th of the extraordinary sum of $34,113,891. The Deposit line is up $1,077,868, while the Loan column is less than the total of the previous week by $341,415. And all this on the eve of another packet from California. The market for Money, to-day, is without essential change. The terms for Bills on London, on account of the great abundance of Money and the indifference of the banking houses to draw except at full rates, are somewhat stiffer, and 109 ⅌ cent. is the currency for choice names. The mail for the Africa will not close until 10 o'clock on Wednesday, and most of the business in Exchange remains yet to be done.

The Stock Market opened this morning with the same dull feeling under which it closed last week. There was some disposition manifested on the early call of the list at the Board of Brokers to sell down one or two of the Road shares, and New-York Central was down at one time as low as 88⅛ ⅌ cent., but soon recovered to 88⅝@¾, and closed in the afternoon at 89⅛@89¼ ⅌ cent. Reading was also stiffer at the close, 47¼ ⅌ cent. cash, and Erie about the same as on Saturday, leaving off 24¾@25 ⅌ cent. The market was firm for Rock Island at 76@76¼ ⅌ cent., for Panama at 107¾, and for Illinois Central at 92½ ⅌ cent. A sudden advance of 2 ⅌ cent. was made on the shares of the Milwaukee and Mississippi Company, and there was a demand for Pacific Mail shares at 80@79¾ ⅌ cent. The whole market in the afternoon, subsequent to the announcement of the Bank Statement, was firm, affording some indications of a little more spirit in the dealings to-morrow than has characterized the daily report of sales since Thursday last.

The mails by the Canada at Boston, which were delivered here early this forenoon, contain nothing important beyond the confirmation of the Halifax telegraphic summary. The circulars and letters are more encouraging for Grain and Flour. In money affairs they report something like the same stagnation and ease which we have on this side. There are one or two London authorities that ascribe the dullness of the funds to political anxiety, but this feeling would seem to be by no means general. We are favored with London papers as late as Saturday, April 10. From the Times we make the following extracts, including the Bank of France statement for April, and the lastest American Stocks:

FRIDAY EVENING.

The English Funds this morning again opened heavily, but, owing to a trifling improvement in the French prices, there was rather less weakness at the close. Consols for money were first quoted 96⅛@¼, and the final transactions were at 96¾@⅞ for money, and 96⅞@⅜ for the 6th of May. The extent of business is very small. Loans on stock continue obtainable at from 2@2½ ⅌ cent. There was a fair demand for discount at the Bank to-day. In the open market the rates for the choicest paper are still 2¼@2½. The new India Loan is well maintained, and has closed this afternoon at 98⅝@¾. It is said that of the £4,800,000 subscribed, the first installment was paid yesterday upon about £4,500,000. The number of defaulters is likely therefore to be small, and it is presumed the Company will in due time publish the names. The total paid into the Bank is understood to be £1,600,000, and as the regular installment on the £4,500,000 will have amounted only to £900,000, the holders of about £840,000 must have exercised the option of paying in full. In the foreign exchanges this afternoon the rates generally were about the same as last post. The corn market was again steady this morning, at the slight improvement of Monday. The report of the Liverpool Cotton market for the week shows an advance of ⅛d. ⅌ ℔. in American descriptions, but a tendency to flatness at the close. The final quotations of the French Three ⅌ Cents on the Paris Bourse this evening were 69f. 40c. for money, and 69f. 65c. for the end of the month, showing a recovery of rather more than an eighth.

The return from the Bank of England for the week ending April 7, gives the following results when compared with the previous week:

Public Deposits	£6,988,972	Decrease	£641,791
Other Deposits	13,733,515	Increase	742,461
Rest	3,123,736	Decrease	773,879
Gov'ent Securities	9,953,978	Increase	51,985
Other Securities	16,620,004	Decrease	237,433
Notes unemployed	11,849,205	Decrease	480,430

The amount of notes in circulation is £20,145,340, being an increase of £194,590; and the stock of bullion in both departments is £18,311,398, (or about $91,555,000,) showing a decrease of £317,519, (or about $1,585,000,) when compared with the preceding return.

On the French Funds and Bank of France exhibit, the London Times remarks:

"The anomalous feature still continues of constant heaviness on the Paris Bourse, with a rapid increase of bullion. The monthly return of the Bank of France, published this morning, exhibits a further great augmentation. The last two returns showed an increase respectively of £1,260,000 and £2,194,000, and on the present occasion it is £1 804,000, the total held being £15,313,000, [$76,565,000.] Thus, in three months there has been an addition of £5,254,000, yet the price of Rentes, reckoning the proportion of dividend which has since accrued, is nearly 1½ ⅌ cent. below the point at which they stood before this favorable movement commenced. Commercial distress will not solve the problem, since the stagnation of business would drive money into public securities. The causes must evidently be referred to political circumstances, and, in the absence of any power of discussion in the Press, it is from the condition of the Bourse alone that an estimate can be formed of the extent of any existing distrust."

The overdue Coupons and acceptances of the Erie Company are bought by Messrs. MORSE & Co., No. 41 William-street, and the Coupons are also bought by Messrs. W. & J. O'BRIEN, No. 29 Wall-street.

The Interest Coupons due in this City May 1, on the outstanding Bonds of the City of Rock Island, issued to the Chicago and Rock Island Railroad Company, will be paid on and after May 1, on presentation at the office of HALSTED & GILMAN, No. 49 Exchange-place.

The American Exchange Bank has declared a half-yearly dividend of 4 ⅌ cent., payable May 3.

Real Estate.

MONDAY, April 26.

There was an assignees' sale, by P. R. WILKINS, of nine lots on the southeast corner of Thirty-fourth-street and Tenth-avenue, being six on the avenue and three on the street adjoining. It was one of a multitude of public sales at the Exchange which furnish little or no guide to the public of the actual fair value of lots. The lots were the full usual size. On the four avenue lots, counting from the corner, there is a mortgage of $5,000. And on each of the other five a mortgage of $1,000. The four avenue lots above named sold for $6,450. Each of the three Thirty-fourth street lots brought only five dollars over the mortgage. The remaining avenue lots brought $25 above the mortgage. There was a very manifest want of confidence among the buyers.

T. J. MILLER sold, under foreclosure, a three story brick house, south side Twenty-first-street, 115 feet three inches east of Third-avenue, 20x40, lot 92 feet, with gas, water, &c., for 4,900, 10 ⅌ cent. down, $3,500 on mortgage, balance on 26th May.

Three years ago Dr. ELEAZER PARMLY, the Bond-street dentist, bought three lots on the north side Thirty-eighth-street, near Fifth-avenue, for which he paid $3,750 each, with an obligation to improve. He has since built a splendid house on one-half of the three lots, and he has just now commenced two more houses on the other half. The lots have since advanced in value to about $7,500.

MISCELLANEOUS.

IMPORTANT TO TRAVELERS ON THE OCEAN, LAKE, OR RIVER.

BUNKER'S PATENT LIFE PRESERVER.
GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICE.

The records of disasters arising from shipwreck, fire, and foundering at sea show an alarming loss of life from the want of proper facilities in times of emergency, for the saving of passengers and crew. Life boats become swamped in LAUNCHING, and LIFE PRESERVERS (so miscalled) useless from age adaptability, or lacking the requisite essentials and often placed on board complying with the letter of the law while the spirit of it is entirely overlooked are facts discovered when the danger is over and disaster and death ensued.

Humanity alone demands that such a state of things should not exist, and while the undersigned would appeal to ship-owners to supply their vessels with an article which has received the highest testimonials of merit from persons of undoubted standing and judgment, he would also urge on every individual embarking on ship or steamer, that a Life Preserver forms a portion of their personal baggage. Occupying but little room when not in use, they are adjustable in the space of half a minute, and form a complete protection to the most vital portion of the body, and when once on, need no further attention or care. Possessing great Buoyant Power, they leave the limbs at perfect freedom. For ladies and children, they are perhaps the only article which combines every requisite for preservation and cannot fail to give confidence to the most timid, however dangerous may be the emergency. They are not affected by heat or cold, and with ordinary care are indestructible. For surf-bathing and wrecking purposes, they are unequaled. The undersigned solicits the attention of the public to this article, at the dépôt of the Emporium, No 167 Broadway.
